UN Puts Viet Nam On Agenda

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations' powerful steering committee recommended today that the question of treatment of Buddhists in South Viet Nam be placed before the current session of the General Assembly.

The 21-nation committee took the action after hearing Ceylonese and Indonesian delegates declare that the situation in South Viet Nam has become a matter of international concern.

Before it acted the committee got bogged down in a procedural argument over whether it should hear the delegate from South Viet Nam, which has only observer status.

Assembly president Carlos to various views, decided that the consensus was against granting the floor to the Viet Nam representative.

S.A. Issue Raised Again

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — A special United Nations committee asked the General Assembly and the Security Council today to consider expelling South Africa at once from the world organization for its policy of rigid racial segregation.

It also called on UN members to carry out penalties against South Africa suggested by the assembly last year. These include an arms embargo, a petroleum embargo and an end to foreign investment in South Africa.

The 21-nation special committee of Asian, African and Latin American nations was established last year to review South Africa's racial policies.

Meanwhile Prime Minister Pearson of Canada worked on the final drafts of the speech he will deliver to the General Assembly Thursday.

Informants said Pearson is not expected to make any dramatic statement, but that he will make an appeal for a further slackening of East-West tensions in light of the nuclear test ban.

End of UN 'Blessing'

SOMERSET STRAND (AP) — South African Foreign Minister Eric Louw said today dissolution of the United Nations "would be a blessing for South Africa and certain other countries." He did not specify which others.

Louw told the ruling National party's Cape congress, however, it was not impossible for the United Nations to cease to exist. He said any decision on South Africa's membership in the United Nations would depend on the circumstances applying at the time.

There has been speculation in South Africa that if the UN General Assembly acted strongly against South Africa's apartheid (racial segregation) policies the government might decide to quit rather than face the possibility of expulsion.

Louw said it would be a blow to the United States if the United Nations ceased to exist because "she used this body as an instrument in her foreign policy."

Critic of Regime Gunned Down

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A prominent political prisoner was seriously wounded by police gun fire today while trying to escape from custody, press reports said.

Dennis Brutus, 38-year-old Mulatto who is president of the South African Non-Racial Committee for Organized Struggle, was shot twice in the stomach after a four-block chase ending across from Johannesburg magistrate court.

Another Nation Bans Air Flights

OUAGADOUGOU, Upper Volta (Reuters) — The West African republic of Upper Volta Wednesday became the 11th African state to ban flights by South African and Portuguese aircraft over its territory.

Oranges Hurled

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (Reuters) — Students at Copenhagen University hurled oranges across their canteen Tuesday night in protest against being served South African fruit. The students are boycotting South African goods because of segregation policies.

DIONNE QUINTS TELL STORY:

'Drenched in Sense of Sin Since Hour of Our Birth'

NEW YORK (CP) — The Dionne quintuplets say they moved into "the saddest home we ever knew" when they were reunited with their parents and brothers and sisters after seven years in the shelter of a nursery.

"If love begets love, guilt begets guilt," the four surviving quintuplets—Annette, Yvonne, Marie and Cecile—say in their life story, as told to James Bough in the current issue of McCall's magazine.

"The air of the big house was thick with it. Mom and dad behaved toward each other as though they had been partners in some unspoken crime in bringing us into the world. We were drenched with a sense of having sinned from the hour of our birth."

The "big house" was a 10-bedroom home Oliva Dionne built at Callander, Ont., to house his family of 11 after the quintuplets were restored to his care in 1941.

The children, made wards of the Ontario government soon after their birth in 1934 to prevent them from being exploited, spent their first seven years in a government-built and government-supervised nursery on the family farm at Callander. They were cared for by a corps of nurses, teachers and guards supervised by Dr. Allan Daffoe, the country doctor who had delivered them.

They describe these early years as happy and carefree, but recall few pleasant memories of their life after they returned to the family.

"Dad wanted us and the quintuplets funds in his own exclusive custody," the sisters said. "In the beginning he needed money for the sake of the other children. But afterward, his fortunes improved... it made no difference. By then, it was a matter of self-esteem that he should win. We were such a prize."

"We were transferred into the big house like a conquered army," they recall, "one group of five, huddling together as if for protection against the other six brothers and sisters."

"Other members of the family went out of their way to say wounding things about us, how they had all been happier before we came into their lives."

Whatver trouble there was seemed to have been smoothed over when three of the girls went home for New Year's.

Thompson said it is the old story of the Communist bloc buying from the West and selling to underdeveloped or needy countries.

He said Canada and others should not be trading with the Communists and leaving themselves open to become victims of Communism through economic dependence on Communists.

"The thought was drummed into us that the discord in which the family lived much of the time was our doing."

"All the children worked in theory, but in practice most of the chores seemed to fall on us."

"We had to scrub floors and clean bathrooms, every item of plumbing in them. We milked the cows and fed the chickens, enjoying the hours outdoors for the most part, because it was a joy to escape from close supervision."

"In the spring, we helped shear the three or four sheep kept in a field behind the house."

The girls say the secret of the illness of their sister Emille, who died after an attack of epilepsy in 1954, was carefully guarded because "the family considered her illness a shameful thing."

The quint's recollection of an unhappy home life recalls controversy that flared in 1955 when none of the girls, then living in Montreal, went home for Christmas.

The father said then that his daughters were drifting away from the family, so much so that they had been treating their brothers and sisters "almost with contempt." He and Mrs. Dionne blamed unnamed outside intruders for the separation.

Columbia Power 'First'

VANCOUVER (CP) — E. Davie Fulton said today power could be available to British Columbia immediately after ratification of the international Columbia River treaty with the United States.

The Progressive Conservative leader said when Premier Bennett says that Peace power would be available before Columbia power he is misleading the people.

At a breakfast meeting and a press conference he said the United States has already stated it would provide Canada with an equivalent of one-third of its downstream entitlement under the treaty immediately after ratification.

This would mean that between 300,000 and 400,000 kilowatts would be available at Blaine, Wash., 30 miles south of Vancouver, immediately after ratification.

The treaty has been ratified by the U.S. but not by Canada.

Mr. Fulton was commenting on his announcement at Prince George that a Progressive Conservative government would stop work on the Peace River and make an immediate start on the Columbia.

He said Premier Bennett has said that the Peace must be built because it could produce power by 1968 and Columbia power would not be available by then.

But by not selling B.C.'s downstream benefits, as planned by Mr. Bennett, B.C. could have immediate power from the Columbia, Mr. Fulton said.

U.K. Protests 'Uncivilized Behavior'

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain has warned Indonesia to stop such "uncivilized behavior" as the burning of the British Embassy in Jakarta, a Foreign Office spokesman said today.

Foreign Secretary Lord Home today called Indonesian ambassador Burhanudin Mohamed Diah to the Foreign Office to issue the warning.

Home told him to ask Indonesia to take measures "immediately" to protect the British ambassador and British lives and property in Indonesia, the spokesman said.

Home told Diah the news from Jakarta that the British embassy had been attacked for the second time and set on fire was viewed with "strong displeasure" by the British government, the spokesman added.

JFK to Meet Top Negroes On Crisis

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — President Kennedy today arranged a meeting in Washington Thursday with seven Negro leaders to discuss the tense racial situation in Birmingham following the bombing of a church which killed four girls.

The conference was requested by Negro leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. of Atlanta.

Hundreds of saddened Negroes gathered this afternoon for the funeral of three of the girls.

King's office in Atlanta said those who would attend the White House meeting would include, in addition to King, the Revs. Fred Shuttlesworth, Ralph D. Abernathy and J. L. Ware; A. G. Gaston, Birmingham Negro businessman; Dr. Lucius Pitts, president of Alabama State College and Bishop H. I. Murchison of Birmingham.

Five Negroes returned quietly to classes today in three newly-integrated schools in the city.

OTTAWA—New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas has arrived home from a tour of Europe convinced Canada's acquisition of nuclear-weapons will add nothing to Western defences—and he threatens to bring down the minority Liberal government on the issue.

He will insist on examination by parliament of the nuclear agreement signed by the government with the United States, he said in a press conference today.

"The government has no right to do otherwise on such an important matter as this. We are prepared to stop the agreement going through whatever that may mean."

His "whatever that may mean" comment was taken to mean the NDP is prepared to give to defeat the government and force another federal election on the issue.

Mr. Douglas, who returned home late Tuesday night, said his five weeks of travel in West Germany, the Scandinavian countries and Holland strengthened his view that

No cabinet, he said, was entitled to agree to such a treaty without referring it to the people's elected representatives for approval.

Mr. Douglas, who returned home late Tuesday night, said his five weeks of travel in West Germany, the Scandinavian countries and Holland strengthened his view that Such action, in fact, was making it more difficult to stop the spread of nuclear weapons to other nations, he declared.

Mr. Douglas disagreed with suggestions that the issue already had been voted on in parliament on the non-confidence motion which criticized the government for moving to get nuclear warheads.

That was a vote on a principle, Mr. Douglas maintained, but this time it would be on an actual treaty committing the government to a specific course of action which had not been debated.

On other issues, however, Mr. Douglas said his party was prepared to give the government "reasonable" support after parliament reconvened Sept. 30.

'Kill the English' Thousands Chant

(Times News Services)

JAKARTA—Indonesia troops were called out in an apparent bid to restore order late today after violent anti-British rioting in which Britain's embassy was wrecked and set ablaze.

United States ambassador Howard P. Jones told reporters he had learned the army's Jakarta garrison had been told to take over control of the capital and restore order as soon as possible.

The garrison's troops began patrolling streets through which thousands of demonstrators rampaged screaming "kill the English."

The violence saw stones hurled at the British ambassador and men and women members of his staff.

The frenzied mobs smashed British homes and outside the blazing three-storey glass and concrete embassy building they piled up nine embassy cars and set them on fire, together with furniture dragged from the building.

Late in the day about 50 Britons rescued from the rioters were under close guard at police headquarters. Two men and one young woman suffered minor injuries, but no Briton or white foreigner was reported seriously hurt.

Earlier, as the embassy burned, the crowd pressed close to a group of 22 British men and women huddled near the wall and began hurling stones, bottles and bricks. A dozen police armed with fixed bayonets and sub-machine-guns tried to hold them back.

AMBASSADOR HIT

Two stones hit British Ambassador Andrew Gilchrist as he stood with folded arms. The British Cricket Club, set up 119 years ago, was destroyed and the pitch dug up.

A group of British children, including two of Ambassador Gilchrist's, arrived by air in Singapore tonight on their way to London.

More than a score of rioters were injured, mostly through their own actions. A hard core of several hundred, which moved on the embassy in trucks quickly swelled to more than 10,000. Thousands of others flocked to the fringes to watch.

The Union Jack was ripped from its staff, torn and burned.

Hours after the new nation was proclaimed, Indonesian mobs stormed the British and Malaysian embassies in Jakarta Monday.

As a result, Malaysia severed diplomatic relations with Indonesia Tuesday. It took similar action against the Philippines which had claimed part of North Borneo and withheld recognition of the infant nation.

About 1,000 Malaysians demonstrators tore up the Indonesian embassy in Kuala Lumpur Tuesday in revenge for Monday's violence here.

Threats Made In London

LONDON (Reuters)—Bomb threats have been made to the Indonesian embassy in London, an embassy spokesman said today.

A police guard was put on duty at the embassy during the day.

Denial of Mr. Perrault's campaign declaration is in keeping with a July statement of Prime Minister Pearson that the physical plan of Columbia development contemplated by the treaty is to be carried out.

Mr. Perrault has made this claim a major part of his campaign in the Sept. 30 B.C. election race. He has made the statement at both Naksup and Nelson, in interior B.C.

The High Arrow dam was an integral part of the treaty, spokesmen said, and could not be left out of the overall development without major amendment to the treaty. In current negotiations Canada is seeking "modifications and clarifications" to the treaty, but with no major changes.

Within a half-hour the flames had swept that floor.

Perrault Claim Draws Denials

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—There is no basis for suggestions that Canada is attempting to negotiate out of the proposed "High Arrow" dam part of the Canada-U.S. Columbia River treaty, informed sources said here today.

"That is a figment of someone's imagination," the sources declared in comment on the claim by B.C. Liberal Leader Ray Perrault. He had stated that Ottawa Liberals wanted to postpone the High Arrow and replace it with a Low Arrow dam near Murphy Creek.

Mr. Perrault has made this claim a major part of his campaign in the Sept. 30 B.C. election race. He has made the statement at both Naksup and Nelson, in interior B.C.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

When the West Coast of Vancouver Island becomes a Californian Sausalito it will be one of the Canadian Group of Seven who will go down as a pioneer in the artists' colony.

Arthur Lismer, who makes his home in Montreal, has been making a six-week retreat to Wickaninnish Lodge on Long Beach for the past 12 summers. Now in his 80's, Mr. Lismer loves the same old rustic cottage and the wild Pacific coastline for inspiration. His favorite bay is now known as Lismer Bay and the home of his summer retreat has been named Lismer Cottage.

A prodigious painter and an agile octogenarian, Mr. Lismer scrambles over the rocks and paints one canvas a day while in seclusion there.

Two sketches and an oil canvas by the well-known artist now hang casually in the old Lodge.

Elsewhere on the West Coast thoughts are centred on more mundane things. With blacktop being laid from Ucluelet to Tofino, you would expect the natives to be quite ecstatic. But that isn't so.

In Tofino all one native had to say was: "It's too narrow to drive when you are drunk; they should have taken that into consideration."

Others in the area are delighted.

Plant pathologist Dr. William Newton had encouraging words recently for potato growers of the Saanich Peninsula. He said history shows people must eat potatoes to become "great."

"The Indians and Eskimos of Canada and the United States did not eat the common potato and, as a result, they remained a primitive people."

But the history of the potato in this area is quite different. The same origin cultivated and consumed the potato in vast quantities. In consequence they built vast and beautiful cities, created lovely pottery and attractive gold and silver jewelry and other fine ornaments."

Dr. Newton said the history of Great Britain is added proof that greatness depends on potato consumption.

"Prior to the introduction of potatoes into England by Sir Walter Raleigh, the country suffered grievous defeats . . . but the situation changed quickly after the people started eating potatoes."

Most surprised hostess in town was the one on duty at the Princess Mary Restaurant Tuesday night.

"Some joker," she said sarcastically to the cashier, "just phoned up . . . said he was Bob Hope . . . and to reserve a table for six at 9:30."

THE Bob Hope, and company, showed up promptly at 9:30.

Hope, a regular visitor to Victoria, has that happy knack of winning fans wherever he goes.

The staff at Ben Laughren's drive-in beanyery, for example, is "sold" on the comedian.

They offered him an invitation to visit the drive-in. He showed up, much to their surprise, and chatted and joked with staff and customers for about half an hour.

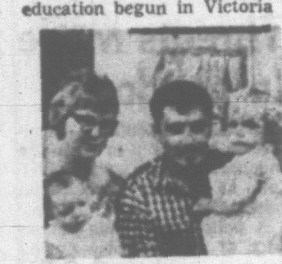

Mary Forbes, secretary of Victoria Symphony Society, tells us TV star Sebastian Cabot has accepted an invitation to give a reading with Victoria Symphony Orchestra in November.

"He has generously offered to do this on an expenses-only basis," Miss Forbes said, "but with the understanding his appearance here does not conflict with his TV or movie obligations in Hollywood."

Mr. Cabot, who has a country home at Deep Cove, hopes to recite Ogden Nash's verses to Saint-Saens' Carnival of Animals with the symphony orchestra on Nov. 10 and 12 in the Royal Theatre and at Sidney on Nov. 11.

Should he be unable to appear, there will be three other guest artists—the piano team of Morisset and Bouchard and conductor Geoffrey Hobbay.

Now in London, England, to continue a distinguished education begun in Victoria are Paul and Donna Phillips.

The young couple took daughters Nicole and Erin on their study trip. Mr. Phillips is a University of Saskatchewan graduate (following Victoria College) and will work for a Ph.D. at the London School of Economics.

Mrs. Phillips is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Speers, Happy Valley Road, Metehosin, and studied at Victoria College before obtaining her BA in Saskatchewan. Mr. Phillips was awarded a Canada Council scholarship of $2,500 plus travel grant, together with the George W. Robertson scholarship and the Benjamin Sanderson scholarship. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Phillips, live at 988 Claremont Avenue, Cordova Bay.

First round of traditional rivalry between freshmen and seniors at the university this week went Tuesday to upper classmen who tried to seal the faculty into the gymnasium during a mass meeting.

On the heels of a formal procession with faculty in academic regalia, a group of seniors abandoned two small cars in front of the double doors, which could then not be reopened.

When the procession left it was detoured by way of a corner entrance.

A former resident of Nanaimo—Mrs. James Turner, 29 Cambridge—was amused by a note in this column last week that Nanaimo is "copying" Victoria's flower baskets.

"We had flower baskets long before Victoria ever thought of them," chided Mrs. Turner.

28th Bus Crash Victim Dies

SALINAS, Calif. (AP)—A speeding freight train scattered a makeshift bus jammed with Mexican field workers Tuesday, killing 28 and injuring 35 in the worst vehicle accident in California history.

At least six of the injured were reported in critical condition today. The 28th victim died hours after the crash in hospital.

Bodies were strewn for half a mile along both sides of the track after the crash at a farm road crossing near the town of Chualar, eight miles south of Salinas.

"Bodies just flew all over the place," said Tony Vasquez, 29. He was working in a nearby lettuce field and saw the converted truck ripped into pieces. Vasquez called the California Highway Patrol and then went back to do what he could.

"Two of those men died in my arms," he said.

INSURED MOANED

"One body was hooked under the engine," said Coroner Christopher Hill Jr., after visiting the scene. Shoes, hats, and cutting knives were all around. Everywhere you would hear the injured moaning."

Twenty - two died by the train. Others died as 15 ambulances rushed them to three Salinas hospitals.

The workers were returning from a celery field to a company labor camp near Salinas, 100 miles south of San Francisco.

Francisco Gonzales Espinosa, 34, of Salinas, the driver, said he stopped at the crossing and looked to his right. Highway Patrol Capt. Francis Simmons said Espinosa declared he did not hear or see the train until the front wheels were on the track.

BLASTED WHISTLE

Engineer Robert E. Cripe of San Luis Obispo said he blasted his Southern Pacific locomotive's whistle when he saw the bus stopped at the crossing.

Shocked, Cripe saw the bus move onto the tracks. Before he could slow his 70-car freight train, rolling at 50 miles an hour, the engine hurtled into the midst of the jammed workers.

A Highway Patrol spokesman said Espinosa was held on an open charge of felony manslaughter, and probably would be arraigned today.

Letter in Blood Protests Persecution

PARIS (Reuters)—A Buddhist leader wrote a letter to United Nations Secretary-General U Thant in his own blood Tuesday to protest against anti-Buddhist measures in South Viet Nam.

Prof. Nguyen Than Thai, secretary-general of the World Buddhist Organization, slashed his chest before a crowd of demonstrators, journalists and photographers in front of the United Nations Education, Social and Cultural Organization Building here.

Dressed in white mourning robes, he crouched before an altar bearing burning incense and a statue of Buddha. His head was also shaved as a sign of mourning.

He took a dagger, and showing no sign of pain or emotion pierced his chest to collect blood to write the letter.

The letter protested against "the crimes of the Ngo Dinh Diem government" and demanded the "categorical condemnation of the violation of the rights of man in South Viet Nam."

Direct, Long-Term Debt System Fulton's Target

By FRANK RUTTER

Conservative leader Davie Fulton said here Tuesday he would bring B.C. back into direct, long-term debt.

He told an audience of 150 Kiwanians at the Empress Hotel he would bring the province back to direct, long-term debt by short-term notes to charter banks and recall some of the crown agency parity bonds held by the public.

"I would replace them with longer term securities—I'm sure we can get a reasonable rate of interest," Mr. Fulton said.

Although Premier Bennett claims B.C. is debt-free, Mr. Fulton said that the government currently has 100 million in short-term notes of around seven months' duration—"a very dangerous situation."

Mr. Fulton also scoffed at the premier's claim that he has secured financing for the Peace River power project.

He said Mr. Bennett has offered no proof of it.

The United States and Canada say Japan should continue voluntary abstention to conserve fishery resources. Japan regards the principle as discriminatory.

Rough Water In Fish Talks

TOKYO (AP)—Negotiations between Japan, Canada and the United States on a treaty covering north Pacific fishing grounds are having "rough sailing," Japanese officials said today.

Foreign ministry officials said that at the end of Wednesday's round of talks Japan stood "far apart" from positions taken by Canada and the United States.

"The negotiations are very tough, but the member nations have not yet reached a breaking point of the conference," one official said.

The key issue, they said, is whether to continue the "abstention principle" of the expired 1953 treaty which prevented Japanese from fishing for halibut, salmon and other fish east of 175 degrees west longitude.

The United States and Canada say Japan should continue voluntary abstention to conserve fishery resources. Japan regards the principle as discriminatory.

Ridiculing the premier still further, Mr. Perrault said no one hears now of the great Wenner-Gren plans for northern development, but Wenner-Gren's friends had taken $8,000,000 out of B.C.

"Bennett likes to have discussion with his big friends in industry but they should be very careful because he may take over these industries," the Liberal chief said.

Referring to power, the Liberal party chief said: "All this nonsense about Bennett's two-river power policy is a political move developed by Bennett and his advisors to dramatize this phony northern development."

The Liberal Party was interested in northern development but it must be done with the cheapest power possible. And any responsible engineer would say that such power development is not feasible.

'Hydro Books Hiding Cost Of Peace Dam'

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Provincial New Democratic Party leader Robert Strachan charged Tuesday night that the government's B.C. Hydro and Power Authority has been "cooking its books" to siphon off as much money as possible into the Peace River power project.

"The whole B.C. Hydro bookkeeping system has been stood on its ear to do this," the party chief told a public meeting as he opened a Sept. 30 election campaign swing in this north central city where Peace power is a top election issue.

"Revelation regarding the real cost of the Peace River will shake the people of this province when the time comes," he predicted.

Mr. Strachan said NDP power policy in a nutshell was integrated and orderly development of both the Peace and the Columbia River power projects.

"We will act directly to avoid the chaos of the present Social Credit power policy," he said. "And we will provide full and open information as we go."

Mr. Strachan also outlined his party's policy on medicare—he has already put forward a plan for a $50,000,000-a-year medicare program for B.C. He also spoke on education.

There would be a "roarback" in Vancouver or Victoria newspapers on the eve of the election "in some letter or story we won't have time to refute."

Mr. Strachan spoke in support of high school teacher NDP candidate for Port George Kenneth Rutherford who faces Lands and Forest Minister Ray Williston in the Sept. 30 vote. In the 1960 election, Mr. Williston beat him two to one.

Also on the platform was John McInnis, 84-year-old millionaire businessman who was B.C. Socialist MLA for Grand Forks in 1967.

Today Mr. Strachan takes off by charter plane for Stewart in Atlin riding where he will address a noon luncheon in support of Frank Calder, NDP MLA there. At night he will speak in Prince Rupert.

"B.C. Power Corporation officials I talked to are only worried about one thing — that they will have to build an extra thermal plant to fill Vancouver's demands before the Peace is completed," he said.

Health Minister Martin, a candidate in Vancouver Burrard, said B.C. hospitals have been getting increased grants every year to meet rising costs. He said the hospitals had a net surplus of $370,000.

Tom Bate, seeking a third term in Point Grey, said he was shocked by Progressive Conservative leader Davie Fulton's statement that he would stop the Peace project if elected.

"We will need every bit of power the Peace will give within 10 years," he said.

Party whip Bert Price, a candidate for re-election in Vancouver Burrard, said he will continue to press for a law requiring exact statement of interest rates for credit buyers.

"If it wasn't for Vancouver, we wouldn't be building the dam," he said.

Dr. Ralph Loffmark, a University of B.C. commerce professor running in Point Grey, said none of the thousands of businessmen he talked to had been scared away from B.C. by government policies.

He said he knew at least six firms in New York and England who would be willing to finance the Peace River project.

TWO RIVER POWER PLAN ESSENTIAL IN INTERIOR

ASHCROFT (CP)—Provincial Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said Tuesday night that opposition party plans to scrap the Peace River power project would result in serious retardation in the industrial development of northern British Columbia.

Speaking in support of Highways Minister Gagliardi in the provincial election campaign the minister said Social Credit's two-river power policy is essential to the development of the interior.

No area would be more vitally affected than Mr. Gagliardi's big constituency of Kamloops.

He said that ore now being produced from Bethlehem Copper properties in expanding quantities would eventually be smelted in the area. But such a development was contingent on cheaper power which could be obtained from the Peace project.

The minister criticized Progressive Conservative leader Davie Fulton for a statement saying the government was withholding a secret report showing that the Peace was uneconomic.

"The so-called report upon which he based the negative program was merely a fragmentation of his imagination," Mr. Williston said.

No such report had come into government hands.

SAANICH UNDEFENDED

Liberal Angered By 'Silent John'

Saanich Liberal candidate Ian Stewart Tuesday night tore into his Social Credit opponent as a silent toady who failed to speak in the election campaign.

The snap election call resulted in many Saanich residents losing their franchise as evidenced by the larger population but smaller voters' list, yet no protest was voiced by Mr. Tisdalle.

"He's more concerned about the Peace River, the Columbia River and even Premier Bennett's bridge at Kelowna than he is about his own constituency," charged Mr. Stewart.

Mr. Stewart also took a swing at Social Credit efforts to trade on fear in such municipalities as Oak Bay by raising a spurious socialist bugaboo.

"It's frightening to see prominent businessmen endorsing this type of campaign," he said, recalling that similar tactics had led to violation of basic rights when the government bullied a property owner in its Deas Island expropriation.

"Our council has had to raise taxes while our member wouldn't speak for us."

Mr. Stewart charged that the sitting MLA had said nothing while the highways department renege on sharing the cost of the Quadra Street reconstruction and the Colquitz sewage engineering study went down the drain.

These two projects alone cost Saanich taxpayers some $100,000, about 1½ mills, while the MLA failed to protest or obtain some financial assistance.

"This makes me wonder if he has any influence with this government at all—he apparently didn't even know of the existence of the Pollution Control Board which denied the Colquitz plan," said Mr. Stewart.

He charged that Mr. Tisdalle showed further ignorance and dereliction of duty when he was caught unprepared to put Saanich's case by the attorney-general department's switching all magistrate's courts into Saanich.

The 500 per cent increase in Saanich welfare costs, lack of facilities for chronically ill and shortage of school accommodation for children also showed the failings of the sitting MLA.

Power Authority. That money is not a debt.

"That takes care of two thirds of the debts the opposition is crying about."

He said funds guaranteed rural B.C. centres for water and sewer system improvements will never have to be paid off by the provincial government because the centres "always make money out of their water systems."

He also said the government hoped to give further assistance to educational needs in the immediate future.

"We are running this province on a cash basis. We must have money in the till at the end of the year. Yet some of our critics say we are starving the people when we show a surplus. It is simply good business."

Mr. Kiernan said contingent liabilities were being called guarantees of B.C.'s debts by some opposition critics.

"The biggest liability is the $800,000,000 guaranteed for the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority."

"The B.C. Electric always, as all other utilities, operates on borrowed money. No large utility can build huge generation stations out of revenue. They borrow, then pay back out of revenue over a period of years. This has been carried on with B.C. Hydro and

Bennett Pledges New Bridge

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bennett Tuesday promised a new bridge will be built to connect the North Shore across Burrard Inlet from Vancouver if his Social Credit government is re-elected in the Sept. 30 provincial election.

Interviewed as he returned to Vancouver on a Pacific Great Eastern railway train from a northern B.C. campaign swing, the premier said he would favor a new span built parallel to the present Lions Gate Bridge.

If his government were re-elected, it would be built "in the near future."

Pressed for details the premier said: "Don't fence me in... we will build a bridge."

He reiterated that at the next session of the legislature a new Social Credit government would abolish the B.C. Toll Highways and Bridges Authority. It would not be necessary when all tolls were removed from bridges and the Deas Island Tunnel.

Mr. Bennett also declared without elaboration that Vancouver Mayor William Rathie, Liberal candidate in Vancouver Point Grey riding for the election, is finished in politics.

And he said his government would make a $250,000 grant to the proposed addition to the Stanley Park aquarium here as soon as Ottawa puts up a similar amount.

The premier is scheduled to address a major political rally in West Vancouver tonight.

'Elect Anyone But Socreds' Gibson Says

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Anyone but Social Credit. That was the theme of a speech by outspoken North Vancouver Liberal candidate Gordon Gibson to a meeting attended by 75 persons Tuesday night.

Gibson, a lumberman who sat in the last legislature: "Vote for me because you agree with me—or vote Conservative if you like—or even CCF though I'm no socialist—but don't vote Socreds."

"If you can't believe in men, then work for what you do believe in—any party—but the Socreds out."

He charged that the Bennett government was made up of "32 puppets." As for the premier himself, Mr. Gibson said: "He's a flattering guy who smiles and asks how you are, but who's ready to cut your throat."

The Alvin Hamilton Approach

SQUAMISH: It was my great privilege in Ottawa to work alongside Alvin Hamilton. He is a man who believes in agriculture. And his policies achieved a great advance for our farms and ranches and orchards.

Why did Alvin succeed? Because he stood for a new government attitude towards agriculture.

We need that new attitude in B.C.

Mr. Bennett has chosen to ignore agriculture. He has directed his energies and our money towards projects more full of votes.

Agriculture can no longer be ignored.

We shall tackle the problems of tax assessment of farm lands.

We shall establish an agricultural research centre at U.B.C., to provide information on production, marketing, technology.

We shall improve access to loan funds, and help agriculture meet the impact of technologic change.

We shall co-operate with the imaginative federal ARDA program, and shall heed the advice of farm groups and the good example of other provinces.

Agriculture is a major industry. The last eleven years have seriously stunted its growth. We shall launch a five-year program of development to make agriculture a strong part of a strong B.C.

B.C. on Cash, Kiernan Claim

KELOWNA (CP)—Provincial Mines and Resources Minister Kenneth Kiernan refuted opposition charges Tuesday night that the Social Credit Government has burdened B.C. with debt.

He said one side of the opposition proposed free medicare because the province was in good financial shape while the other side had the province in deep debt.

"The truth lies between those two extremes," he said in a public address at nearby Westbank.

"We are running this province on a cash basis. We must have money in the till at the end of the year. Yet some of our critics say we are starving the people when we show a surplus. It is simply good business."

Mr. Kiernan said contingent liabilities were being called guarantees of B.C.'s debts by some opposition critics.

"The biggest liability is the $800,000,000 guaranteed for the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority."

"The B.C. Electric always, as all other utilities, operates on borrowed money. No large utility can build huge generation stations out of revenue. They borrow, then pay back out of revenue over a period of years. This has been carried on with B.C. Hydro and Power Authority. That money is not a debt.

"That takes care of two thirds of the debts the opposition is crying about."

He said funds guaranteed rural B.C. centres for water and sewer system improvements will never have to be paid off by the provincial government because the centres "always make money out of their water systems."

He also said the government hoped to give further assistance to educational needs in the immediate future.

Enforced Introspection

THE SUMMER'S SCANDALS have provided only one of the causes of a new introspection in Britain. The trend had started long before Profumo became a household word. It was a frame of mind which began even before General de Gaulle shocked the nation by declaring that Britons were not needed in Europe and made it wonder where it did belong.

Introspection is not a particularly English trait, but Britons today have much on which to ponder. They see their role as a world power severely restricted; they are an island between two vast continents, a near and immobile target for nuclear bombs in time of war, a voice of limited power when the two great giants speak.

The swing from sea power to air has deprived Britain of the traditional lead she enjoyed in this arm of defence. At this point an island of 50 million people must pause to balance defence needs and ability to pay for them. Almost inevitably the decision must be not to try to duplicate the armaments of her giant ally, but to assume a supporting role.

The contraction is political as well as military. To her undying credit Britain voluntarily led the way in the twentieth century march of African and Asian peoples to independence. The march was not always easy or even, and few marchers have yet reached their ultimate destination. But Britain's record stands comparison with any other nation's. The winds of change and the modern tide were recognized as flowing in the same direction.

Against this more or less familiar background, however, the Briton has been assailed by inward doubts. He sees a lack of decisiveness becoming almost a standard state in his government. He reads of low morals in high places and suspects more. He finds the bulwark of the monarchy being nibbled at continually in ways which public opinion would not have permitted a generation ago.

He discovers, one after another, cases of official laxness and apparent fumbling which endanger his country's security. He begins to suspect that even his ineffable system of law has faults and dark aspects. Even his sportsmen are beaten in international contests.

What is happening to Britain now is in effect a psychological reaction to having been powerful and having won a war yet gained nothing tangible, of having established a high standard of individual and national virtues only to see the emergence of a world in which such ideals are less highly regarded.

Yet it is hard to see this as more than a temporary state, a misstep. Britain will not be found in any list of countries the world could do without. Nor can Europe do without her, regardless of General de Gaulle's opinion. History has shown that the continent cannot ignore the island off its northern shore, for the island contains too many of the qualities which Europe needs.

But the country is looking for leadership, and the leaders are looking for a cause. Now, as in more critical times, Britain needs a rallying point—a fight-them-on-the-beaches speech, a message from Everest's peak on Coronation eve, even a relief of Mafeking.

The new path will not carry Britain to world leadership again, for this is the era of the continent-states. But the now introspective Briton will find his place, and it will not be on the lower slopes.

Mr. Ben Bella's One-Party State

PRESIDENT AHMED BEN Bella has lost no time in converting his one-party state into the kind of administration he wanted from the start. He has applied what his political enemies called "a blueprint for dictatorship" to cover the nationalization of all land and to establish state operation of business left by French owners who fled the country.

This is scarcely the fulfilment of the hopes harbored by Gen. Charles de Gaulle when he campaigned successfully to bring the war between the two countries to an end. He can find little satisfaction in this development. Nor can he draw any consolation from the fact that Algeria has welcomed Soviet friendship by the arrangement of a $100,000,000 long term loan from Russia.

But the president of France is not the only one who must look with bitterness on the changes wrought in Algeria by "independence." Closer to home the Berbers, whose forces were among those fighting hardest for severance of the French ties, find themselves far removed from the goal to which they aspired. They consider the new president and his followers interlopers and they broke early with the regime.

"For us," runs the word through the Berber villages, "everything is still to be conquered. We are still at the starting point of independence."

This is the sentiment spread through about one-fifth of Algeria's 11 million population.

President Ben Bella has his one-party state and proposes to speed up his socialization. But one in five of the people living in his country don't see it that way.

The Shrunken Lists

EXCEPT IN THE CASE OF THE Conservatives, little significance can be attached to the fact that 24 fewer candidates filed nominations for the general election at the end of the month than filed for the last general provincial poll.

Social Credit and NDP parties. The Liberals are short only one of 52 possible candidates while the Conservatives have apparently abandoned some areas where they have little chance of matching Social Credit investment and have had difficulty in finding standard bearers in a few other localities. They still have 44 in the running—a number quite adequate to prove or disprove the voting magnetism of their new leader, Mr. Davie Fulton.

He, of course, is matched against one of the government's strong men, Mr. Gagliardi, in Kamloops where some of the highest interest in the month-end contest will centre.

The city on the Thompson is not the only point which commands wide attention. In Greater Victoria strong new Liberal candidates carry hopes of adding to their party's representation in the Legislature, and in Vancouver Point Grey—breached in its last by-election by Dr. Patrick McGeer—Vancouver's mayor, Mr. William Rathie, gives additional power to the Liberal thrust.

But if the smaller number of candidates seeking office provides little cause for concern, the shrinkage in the voters' list most certainly is unsatisfactory.

A province with a growing population has fewer enfranchised people to elect its government today than was the case in the last test. This provides its own commentary on the confusion and disorder caused by Mr. Bennett's decision to call a snap election. Insufficient time was allowed to carry out the ordinary mechanics of registering all entitled to vote. This is not an accomplishment to which the premier may point with pride.

A Motor Failed, a Man Died

THE DEATH OF A VICTORIA man aboard his disabled cruiser drifting north from Miami has aroused understandable sympathy not only because the victim was known here, but because Victoria appreciates, from close experience, the hazards of the sea.

A number of elements combined to cause this recent tragedy. None among the contributing factors is more clearly recognized than the dangers which arise when a motor fails.

This is a familiar cause of difficulty wherever men depend for their safety at sea on mechanical equipment. But if that fact is widely recognized it is not appreciated enough in these parts to prevent some people from treating the sea with contempt.

During the recent summer several cases occurred in waters off our coast in which men in small boats were placed in excessive danger because their motors stopped. By good fortune and by resourceful action on the part of others they were brought safely ashore.

There is no absolute guarantee against a failing motor. There is, however, an urgent need for those who enjoy boating to respect the waters on which they travel and to recognize the hazards they face if their power fails. That is a point that should be emphasized as more and more enthusiasts take to boating without adequate knowledge of or appreciation for the vagaries of tide and wind hereabouts.

WAR IN THE SWAMP JUNGLE

A Strategic Hamlet Fights Off the Viet Cong

By JOSEPH ALSOP

THE command post of the battle was a little shack next to the mud fort of the militiamen of Binh Thanh, a strategic hamlet in Viet Nam. Here the district chief, Capt. Hoa, a tough little man with a Buddhist medal gabbled earnestly to the L-19 liaison plane circling endlessly overhead.

On the high bank of the mud fort was Maj. John S. Ames, commander of the provincial advisory group. Alternately, he gazed out across the exquisite green sweep of rice fields, to the clump of jungle a couple of hundred yards away, whence came the pop of firing; and turned to glare at his radio-equipped jeep with furious animosity.

"Goddam it, why should the radio cut out today? Goddam it, I hope the L-19 gets through on the Vietnamese net."

Bombers Come In

Suddenly there was a cry from one of the group of women waiting by the mud fort to help the wounded men, who occasionally limped or were carried back across the rice fields from the sharp fight in the patch of jungle.

The sharp-eyed woman pointed excitedly. And there, sure enough, were five AD-6 fighter bombers. The L-19's call for air support had indeed got through.

Like a small but intelligent dog leading a flock, the L-19 invited the AD-6s to follow along; and over the thickest patch of jungle it dropped marker bombs. The smoke plumes rose, acid-carbide against the perfect blue of the late afternoon sky. The first AD-6 swooped to the attack. There was a crash of rockets. At this new noise, the acrobats and white herons soared up in alarm from the rice fields all about.

For 20 minutes, the strafing and rocketing continued. Then it was over, and as the planes flew homeward, little Capt. Hoa urged his men forward, into the newly strafed area which the enemy had hastily fortified hours before. Now the noise of the battle rose and became more continuous. Suddenly, it was ominously dominated by the rattle of Browning automatic rifles.

That meant that the air attack had failed to take out any of the three BARs the Communists were known to have. And that meant, in turn, that the battle could end only in a draw. For in that jungle, no man can see more than three yards ahead and, in these conditions, the little district chief's force of village militia and civil guards could not hope to take a dug-in position protected by heavy automatic fire.

As the dusk began to fall, the faces in the hut command-post grew grimmer almost by the minute. You could almost see them thinking about the Communist outcome, went into the nearby hamlet and returned with food for the troops.

At last the order was given to break off the fight, and files of men trudged back across the rice fields, carrying a couple more wounded.

That is how a rather ordinary, indecisive, fairly representative minor battle of this war in Viet Nam now looks. The battle had begun even before we left Saigon, when a patrol sent out at dawn by the Binh Thanh strategic hamlet ran smack into a reinforced company of Viet Cong troops. The hamlet used its new radio to call for help from Capt. Hoa. The district chief threw in all the men he could gather and borrowed more support (but very little was available) from the provincial commander.

Both sides suffered. A bamboo helmet, blood-stained and bullet-pierced, was the sole proof of the Viet Cong's losses, for they still carry away their dead and wounded when they can. Capt. Hoa's men had five dead and 12 wounded among about 250 men, which is a rather heavy casualty list for irregulars to accept without flinching.

Indecisive as it was, moreover, the battle at Binh Thanh strategic hamlet must have given less than no satisfaction to the Viet Cong commander of Kien Hoa province. To begin with, his reinforced company almost certainly had the mission of overwhelming the hamlet's mud fort and if possible the hamlet itself by a surprise attack at night. Instead, the company was surprised by the dawn patrol of the men of the hamlet.

Defence in Depth

To go on, this is one of the "front line hamlets" of Capt. Hoa's district of Binh Dai. Like the other two districts of this province, Binh Dai is an island, with all but impenetrable mangrove swamps at its seaward end. The swamps are the Viet Cong stronghold. Capt. Hoa has therefore laid out his strategic hamlets in the pattern of a defence in depth command, with the front line nearest the swamps.

Being in the front line, Binh Thanh hamlet has suffered everything from petty harassing attacks to major assaults since the hamlet was formed. Yet here was Binh Thanh still on the alert, still resisting, with its women spontaneously gathering to aid the troops.

"In the five months I've been here," Maj. Ames told me as we left Binh Thanh, "no night has passed without an attack on at least one of the strategic hamlets. We have more than 250 of them by now. In all that time, not one of them has failed to resist. In the great majority of cases the VC has been beaten off, quite often with heavy losses. And although some hamlet forts have been lost, no actual hamlet has ever been overrun."

There is something oddly inconsistent, here, with the widely propagated picture of Vietnamese masses with no will to resist and a positive tendency to regard the Communists as the preferable alternative.

Battle of Britain Week

Memories turn this week to those days of magnificent courage 23 years ago when, rising above the smoke of ruins surrounding St. Paul's, the spirit of Britain soared to new heights on the wings of a relatively few Spitfires handled by the sure skill of a new breed of young men—"the few."

One of them, Pilot Officer John Magee, Jr., who died in action three months after he had penned the lines on the back of a letter to his mother, left an imperishable record of that spirit in the poem:

HIGH FLIGHT

O! I have slipped the surly bonds of earth
And danced the skies on laughter-silvered wings;
Sunward I've climbed, and joined the tumbling mirth
Of sun-split clouds—
And done a hundred things
You have not dreamed of—wheeled and soared and swung
High in the sunlit silence.
Hov'ring there
I've chased the shouting wind along, and flung

My eager craft through footless halls of air.
Up, up the long, delirious, burning blue
I've topped the wind-swept heights with easy grace
Where never lark, nor even eagle flew—
And, while with silent lifting mind I've trod
The high untrespassed sanctity of space
Put out my hand and touched the face of God.

British Labor Eyes National Planning

By Richard Purser

committed to large-scale national planning as a creed.

The snag affecting the unions in national economic planning is the status of wages. Mr. Harold Wilson is devoting his greatest attention to economic policy, and he warned in a July speech that wages cannot be excluded. He hoped for union co-operation with a Labor government on wages. Labor economic affairs spokesman James Callaghan is preparing for the forthcoming Labor party conference a national expansion plan linking pay, prices, profits and productivity.

The idea of national guiding standards for wage increases flies in the face of union tradition. The unions were formed by men who banded together in the face of early industrial exploitation to get decent wages and conditions which they could not obtain singly. The social ills which created unions in the '30s are not yet so completely vanished as to change most unionists' minds.

Workers join their union in the expectation that it will work to get them the best possible wages. It is fatuous to expect them to conclude easily that their right to "grab all they can" should be moderated in their own long-term interest.

It was not surprising to see the Trades Union Congress torn several ways at this month's meeting. Union leaders were criticized for not being as far-seeing as the brilliant Mr. Woodcock, but they cannot afford to see too much further ahead than their own members for fear of dismissal.

It was the following three TUC votes which attracted press derision: (1) Refusal to accept "wage restraint" under any circumstances; (2) acceptance of wage restraint only as part of a national plan also limiting dividends and profits; (3) granting of permission to Mr. Woodcock and his aides to co-operate in government economic planning, with wages included in the talks.

But the first motion was passed only on the understanding that "any circumstances" did not mean under a Labor government. The important motion and the only one with any practical immediate effect was the third. Its easy passage was a resounding victory for Mr. Woodcock. Contrary to what has been said in Britain so often in the past week, the other two motions did not turn it into a defeat.

The unions remain gravely suspicious of wage restraint, but if and only if there is a Labor government they are at least willing to wait and see what may emerge from the forthcoming era.

Will this era be the Woodcock-Wilson era? The two could make a superb team if conflicting jobs do not force their views apart. At present they are close, but Mr. Wilson, if he becomes prime minister, will have a national plan which he will not want to be imbalanced by union or any other pressure. If it must be laid down that total incomes should only rise by a certain percentage in a given time to remain in line with national economic growth, he will lay it down.

Political Hitch

The hitch is that it will be politically impossible for him to do so by legislation. NEDC, even strengthened as it will be under Labor, cannot act except through persuasion. Effective persuasion will be much of Mr. Wilson's problem. At least the union leaders will listen to him. Mr. Woodcock, aside, few will listen to the Tories.

As Mr. Woodcock sees it, the idea of an incomes policy is that if money incomes are to be prevented from rising more rapidly than output, it must be clear to those effected that this will enable a program of faster economic growth with a consequent much faster rise in real (as opposed to money) incomes. Purchasing power must be seen to rise.

One thing is regarded as essential by virtually all Laborites and unionists if "wage restraint" is to have any hope of working class acceptance. It is that prices, profits, dividends and individual (non-union) salaries be similarly checked. It must be clearly seen that "restraint by one section of the community would not merely result in a gain by other sections," in the words of the TUC economic development and planning report.

Keep Your Sunny Side Up

LAST WEEK I began an engrossed study of the grain on a dining room table that has probably been in our family longer than I have. We use it now at Shawnigan because it's sturdy and because there's no space for it at home.

The table runs back beyond my earliest memories. It was clothed in spotless linen one August day in 1917 when my Grandfather died, and from it were served buttered tea buns and tea to the funeral party on its return by hackney-cab from the cemetery.

In happier times it stretched, extended, the full length of the dining room and groaned under the weight of Christmas fare, seating, I'd guess, a score of relatives and friends. Later we played pingpong on it, with racquets made of frames over which were stretched sheets of vellum. There was more pong than ping to the game.

It bore the bright hopes of my own small wedding breakfast. And at various times, infants have been changed on it.

Through a substantial age it has shared vital events of my life—births, marriages and deaths, and it is still going strong.

This is remarkable because, as a manual training graduate, I cut away from the bars which connected the outside legs to the centre supports a vast quantity of ornately-worked gingerbread that was considered essential bracing. Mother was mildly shocked by the operation but grew to appreciate the freedom of movement which the elimination of the scroll work assured.

It, by long association, inanimate things take on a personality, the table has unquestionably established kinship with us.

It was once a bright, yellowish gold, though the top was marked by scratches and dark rings. Later we had it French-polished, which was a mistake. Anything warmer than toast through a plate left a milky cloud on the fixture. Also, the high gloss caused so much anxiety over possible scratching we couldn't appreciate the finish.

Stott

for years. Then it became marked up a little and two generations of the family did homework on it.

Now I have given it the kind of scrutiny accorded the table only once before in its venerable attachment to us.

On the other occasion my sister inspected the grain closely. She had been playing basketball for the old Provincial Normal School, wearing the club's green and purple sweater and those voluminous bloomers that are about the only thing missing from a current Harlem Globe-Trotters' show. The girls met Isobel Crawford's VIAA team at the VIAA gym on Catherine Street.

In the course of play, my sister executed an unintentional sliding tackle that blocked her opponent and also gave my sister more of the gym floor than she was rightly entitled to. She packed it away somewhere behind the serge bloomers.

At home she stretched face down on the dining table with mother, with a darning needle and tweezers, performed superficial, unanesthetized surgery that was painful in the extreme. Jessie was taking singing lessons at that time. What came from her mouth as the splinters were removed was anything but Songs Her Mother Taught Her.

The years rolled by and time came for me to take a recumbent posture on the old dining table, with my nose to the aging and checked French polish.

It started innocuously enough as a slight irritation at the lower left corner of my right hip pocket. Then it flowered in gorgeous, sunset hues and I realized I had made one of Torchy Peden's six-day bike races so distressing to him. Eventually the thing blossomed into a carbuncle. The dining room table became the focus of a field hospital for four-day treatments.

I've grown mighty familiar with the grain on that table top—and the checks in the polish that, on close inspection, give it the patina of an old master. I concentrate on this while the operator performs the necessary ministrations, humming a little irreverently, "T've Grown Accustomed to Her Face," from "My Fair Lady."

HOME GARDEN

Chrysanthemums... Exclusively

Outdoor chrysanthemum gardeners can have a fill of their favorite flower on Friday and Saturday of this week.

The fall shows up to this date have had many classes for these lovely flowers, but the annual show of the Victoria and District Chrysanthemum Society is for chrysanthemums exclusively.

Newcomers to this area will be more than mildly interested to know that all the blooms exhibited at this show have been grown outdoors.

Another point of interest to those contemplating growing similar flowers is the fact that all are started as young rooted plants in early spring of the same year as they bloom.

The Chrysanthemum Society's show will be held in the Mount Toimie Scout and Guide Hall on Shelbourne Street, opening at 2 p.m. Friday until 9 p.m., and Saturday from 1 to 9 p.m.

The event will officially be opened at 2 o'clock Friday by Mrs. R. Girard, wife of the Regional Commissioner for Greater Victoria Boy Scouts.

The Mount Toimie Scout

Association benefits from this show annually, and the auction of all blooms on Saturday at 9 p.m. adds to their funds.

If you would like to be amazed at colors, sizes and types of chrysanthemums your "good turn" for Friday or Saturday can be to attend this show.

Show stewards will answer questions of visitors and give information on the growing of 'mums. Asking questions is a good way to find out about things we see, and many gardeners will doubtless embrace the intensive growing of show specimen 'mums as a new and exciting hobby for next season.

John Deutsch Given Senior Federal Post

OTTAWA (CP)—Economist John J. Deutsch, a university professor who has made a specialty of advising the government, returns to full-time government service as chairman of the new Economic Council of Canada.

Appointment of the 52-year-old vice-principal of Queen's University to head the 28-member council was announced Tuesday by Prime Minister Pearson.

Mr. Pearson expressed "great personal satisfaction" that Mr. Deutsch agreed to take the post—"the importance of which cannot be overstated."

His appointment is the first step in setting up the council, whose role will be to chart economic goals for Canada and advise government and industry on the best way of attaining them.

The announcement said two additional council members will be named "very shortly." These two, with Mr. Deutsch, will be on a full-time basis. The other 25 members, to serve on a part-time basis, would be appointed later.

Mr. Deutsch prepared a report on amalgamation in Greater Victoria in 1958. He favored Saanich-Victoria unity.

WAS AT UBC

Mr. Deutsch, a former assistant deputy minister of finance, left government service in 1956 for a university career, first as head of the University of British Columbia's economics department and later as vice-principal and economics professor at Queen's University.

Fossilized footprints, believed made 200,000,000 years ago, have been found on the island of Tasmania, Australia.

ROBERTS CHALLENGED

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP)—Premier John Roberts is playing "a dirty trick" on the people of Ontario by raising fears that their private pension plans are endangered by the federal government's contributory pension program, Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer said Tuesday night.

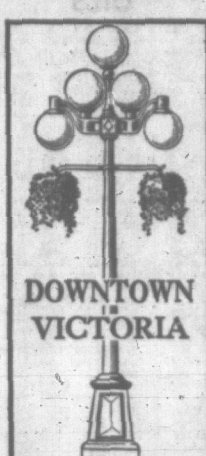

The Liberal leader challenged Premier Roberts to make clear before the Ontario election Sept. 25 whether or not he would support a pension program run by the federal government or persist with his own proposal for a limited system of pensions run by private insurance companies.

Federal Judge Condemns SIU

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal judge has called the Seafarers International Union a "violent" organization and urged a government agency to "go after" it.

UN Assembly Invaded By Cubans

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — A "free Cuba" demonstration broke out in the General Assembly hall Tuesday during election of committee chairmen for the 18th session.

As newly-elected president Carlos Sosa Rodriguez of Venezuela declared nominations open for the chairmanship of the trusteeship committee, some 15 or 20 youths in grey battle dress leaped from the public gallery at the rear of the hall.

Shouting "Long live free Cuba" in Spanish, they rushed down on the assembly floor as UN guards swarmed in among the delegates.

One youth managed to get within five feet of the podium where Sosa sat beside Secretary General Thant, before guards overtook him.

The noisy demonstration took only a few seconds before the UN security officers hustled the youths out of the hall. Most were seized before they reached the last row of delegates.

spoke out in U.S. District Court Tuesday in the case of the Howard L. Shaw, a Canadian freighter. The ship, caught in the middle of a dispute between the independent SIU of Canada and the Canadian Maritime Union (CMU), has been idle and empty in Chicago for almost five months.

BOMBING UNSOLVED

A dynamite blast knocked a hole in her side Sept. 7 in an unsolved bombing.

The judge heard arguments on a motion to remit fines on local 418 of the Grain Elevator Workers Union. Members of the small unit have refused to load grain on the Shaw.

The Shaw is owned by Upper Lakes Shipping Limited of Toronto. The company once drew its sailors from SIU ranks but since last year the sailors have been represented by the CMU.

Judge Parsons told a lawyer for the U.S. National Labor Relations Board that the "other union is the violent one" and responsible for the continuing secondary boycott of the Canadian ship.

PRIVATE TALKS
In Vancouver, Walter Reuther said he thought the Great Lakes shipping dispute could be solved by private union talks.

Auto Workers told a press conference the "labor movement should have the moral courage to clean up its own house without government intervention."

GOVERNOR of District 32, Optimist International, Max Welton Stell will be guest speaker at a joint meeting of two Victoria clubs and Oak Bay club Thursday at 6:30 p.m. at Uplands Golf Club. He will also address Victoria Noon Optimists Thursday noon at the Pacific Building. Mr. Stell's district is composed of B.C., Washington, Oregon and Idaho and has 45 clubs and over 1,500 members.

'But What Is There Left To Socialize?' —Liberal

Rather than fearing socialism, people should fear an unrestrained Premier Bennett in the legislature.

Oak Bay Liberal candidate Alan Macfarlane gave his advice to an audience of 50 Tuesday night in Oak Bay Municipal Hall.

"The Secreds," he said, "are running a campaign of fear and destruction, not a campaign of good representation and not a man-to-man campaign."

In reply to the slogan, "Social Credit or Socialism?" he asked: "But what is there left to socialize in this province that the Secreds have not already done?"

NO THREAT
Mr. Macfarlane said socialism never posed a threat in Oak Bay. The NDP have never received 10 per cent of the Oak Bay vote.

In answering the premier's statement that he sees a landslide, Mr. Macfarlane said, "I say that he sees double."

"The Social Credit party and Oak Bay candidate Dr. Charles Ennals are promoting this need—they were more interested in accumulating a $40,000,000 surplus."

A Liberal government would consult the medical profession and the public before embarking on medicare. The plan would cost $6,000,000, and cover those people who cannot obtain medical coverage.

CONSULT MARTIN
If Dr. Ennals is promoting mental health centres and homes for retarded children, Mr. Macfarlane suggested he should first consult Health Minister Martin.

"This government," he said, "is unsympathetic to these

In 1956, he said, Mr. Martin said he would put into operation a full scale program for chronic care. The people are still waiting.

The Liberal program would include building nursing and rest homes to be run at cost to the patient. They would also provide for additional accommodation at the acute hospitals for such patients.

The Liberals would abolish the home-owners' grant and spend this $20,000,000 on school costs, he said.

JOBLESS TOTAL DROPS

OTTAWA (CP)—The back-to-school movement of teenagers helped reduce the ranks of Canada's unemployed to 270,000 in mid-August, a drop of 23,000 from July and 10,000 from the year-earlier total, the federal labor department and the Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The mid-August jobless count represents 3.8 per cent of the labor force, compared with 4.1 per cent in August, 1962, and 4.8 per cent in August, 1961. In July the unemployment rate was 4.2 per cent.

PARKING RESTRICTED FOR ROSE EXTENSION

A series of no-parking restrictions—largely implementing changes required for the Rose Street extension—were recommended to city council Tuesday by its traffic committee.

Along with no parking strips immediately adjacent to intersections on Rose, the committee recommended parking bans:

On both sides of Rose between Bay Street and Queens and Pembroke; on the west side of Blanshard between Queens and a projection of Pembroke; and on Finlayson Street between Douglas and Alder Streets.

Trade With Russians Urged By Senators

WASHINGTON (CP)—Canada's huge wheat sale to Russia aroused a demand in the United States Senate Tuesday that the U.S. government lift restrictions against trade with the Communists so that U.S. farmers can compete with Canadians for part of the Soviet wheat market.

Senator J. William Fulbright, Arkansas Democrat and chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, said he agrees with several wheat-state representatives that U.S. trade curbs look "a little silly" when it is seen that Canada sells wheat to Russia for hard cash while the U.S. government continues to give wheat away to Soviet satellites.

As Senator Milton R. Young, North Dakota Republican, initiated the floor amendment, he demanded revision in U.S. export policy, an informant close to Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman said Freeman is prepared to back revisions if he finds sentiment in the U.S. favors such a move.

Under existing U.S. policy, every exporter wishing to trade with the Reds must first obtain a federal export permit. The administration has indicated it does not favor commercial deals with either the Soviet Union or Red China.

Freeman is reported to be watching for hard-core conservative reaction from the U.S. farm belt. If comment generally follows initial Senate reaction, the administration is certain to announce a relaxation in policy on trade with the Soviets, the informant said.

Union Men Seek Recruits In White Collar Ranks

By GERRY MCNEIL

QUEBEC (CP) — Eighteen blue collar men are at an idyllic retreat here, taking a detailed course on how to fit the union necktie around Canada's Great White Collar.

They are mostly organizers from major unions in the Canadian Labor Congress, which last year formed a national committee aimed at bringing the white collar worker into the labor movement.

Only about 14 per cent of the 3,145,000 white collar workers in Canada are union men, although the growing category includes one-half the total labor force.

Economist Sylvia Ostrey, professor at the University of Montreal, told the group that white collar workers present a dramatic challenge to the labor movement.

The percentage of white collar workers has doubled since 1901 while the proportion of blue collar workers, main source of union strength, has remained almost static at 28 per cent.

CHALLENGE AHEAD

The challenge seems to rest mainly in whether the labor movement, designed for blue collar workers, can adjust to the requirements of the white collar employee.

"About the only firm conclusion we've come to is that the general approach ought to be flexible," William Dodge, executive vice-president of the CLC, said in an interview Tuesday.

The organizers, mostly men from blue collar ranks, were being coached in the successes the labor movement has had in organizing white collar workers in Europe.

Clifford Scotton, editor of the CLC's Journal, also gave them a first lesson in public speaking where white collar workers are concerned.

Everett M. Kassalow, of Washington, D.C., director of research of the industrial union department, AFL-CIO, told them:

"Union leaders should not fall into the trap of believing workers will automatically identify themselves with a blue collar 'proletarian' outlook.

"Rather most union men appear as the defenders of the threatened status of the office workers."

Organizers had to learn, for instance, that merit rating, an

* More tender center-portion meat

Of course, like all Safeway steaks and roasts, it's cut from Canada Choice Beef. And just the smaller five ribs are included in this seven-inch cut.

Carefully aged to peak tenderness, the roast is carefully trimmed to cook better, carve easier, and give you more meat value.

The part Safeway trims off before weighing can run as much as a full pound per roast. End section short ribs, which cook better by methods other than roasting, are removed to be sold at a lower price. The heavy chine bone is removed to make carving easier. This bone is replaced with a thin light-weight layer of fat to seal in juices.

Sobering Finale Written To Credit Card Binge

A young man who stole a credit card and travelled across the continent on it was brought to book for the offence in Sooke RCMP court Tuesday.

Bruce Osmo Taivain, about 23, formerly of Sooke, was sentenced to one year in Oakalla on charges of breaking and entering, and theft.

He pleaded guilty.

Taivain stole $8 and a credit card from Cain Bros. Garage in Sooke on July 2 of last year.

He broke in by smashing the glass in a small window and unlatching the door.

Taivain then left for his United States, eventually arriving in Washington, D.C., having run up a bill of about $1,200 on the credit card.

He was arrested there, held for nine months, and then deported to Ontario.

RCMP arrested him there and shipped him back to Sooke to face the breaking and entering charge.

A palm-print found in the garage after the break-in helped identify him, said Sooke RCMP Cpl. Lew Dempsey.

Cumberland Wants Prison

CUMBERLAND—Village commissioners, seeking to solve an unemployment problem here, have decided to ask the government to construct a maximum security prison in the district.

It was felt such a project would provide jobs for men in the area.

Commissioner Watson said the area has higher than normal unemployment because of mine closures in recent years.

He said the Tsaile River Mine is the only one still employing miners to any extent.

DUNCAN—Two all-party rallies will be held in the Cowichan Valley next week.

Man Upbraided For Shooting Swimming Deer

CHEMAINUS—William E. Brenton of Duncan pleaded guilty in magistrate's court Tuesday to shooting a swimming deer from a boat near Saltair beach on Sept. 15. He was fined $25.

Magistrate R. H. Purdy told the accused: "I don't think you are a fit and proper person to have a licence. I would cancel it but I cannot find anything in the Game Act which gives me the power."

DUNCAN—He didn't think I was breaking the law at the time. I think I needed the meat pretty bad," the accused said.

The magistrate said only the fact the accused was a $66-a-month social assistance recipient saved him from the maximum fine of $100.

'ALMOST BROADSIDE IN CHANNEL' Skipper Blames CPR for Collision

VANCOUVER (CP)—A veteran mariner Tuesday blamed a 1960 collision in Vancouver's First Narrows on a ship that was supposed to anchor well outside the harbor.

Capt. John Eveleigh said he had no idea the Canadian Pacific's Princess Elaine was anywhere near Lions Gate Bridge when he took the Mv. Alaska Prince through the narrow channel Jan. 11, 1960.

He testified in admiralty court that he suddenly saw the Elaine through the fog, about 750 feet away, "almost broadside in the channel."

The vessels collided without injury to anyone, but the Prince suffered $100,000 damage, the CPR vessel $25,000.

Capt. Eveleigh said he had previously talked to the Elaine by radio, telephone and was told she stopped half a mile west of the bridge for the Prince to clear the narrows, liability in the collision.

6-Month Term For Bigamist

ALBERNI—Bigamist David John Centi will spend the next six months wed to a prison cell.

Centi, 26, a Franklin River millworker, was sentenced on Tuesday after pleading guilty to going through a marriage ceremony Sept. 7 when he was already married.

Mrs. Centi testified she and her husband were planning to leave on a vacation when he kissed her on the cheek Sept. 7 and excused himself to go down town.

While Mrs. Centi waited, her husband took another bride. He was arrested the next day in New Westminster.

Stingy Sandy Has St. Louis' Number

Koufax Blanks Redbirds On Measly 87 Pitches

By Associated Press

Sandy Koufax, brilliant Los Angeles Dodgers left-hander, hurled only 87 pitches Tuesday night to subdue St. Louis and left the Cardinals with only a long-shot chance of overtaking the National League-leading Dodgers.

Making their last stand in a vital three-game series with the Dodgers, the Cardinals lost for the second night in a row as Koufax spun a four-hit, 4-0 victory and posted his 11th shutout, a record for a southpaw.

The loss, only the third in the last 22 games for St. Louis, left the Cardinals three games back—four in the all-important loss column. Including the finale of the series tonight, the Cardinals have only eight games remaining to 10 for the Dodgers.

Koufax made the night a personal triumph by becoming the first left-hander in major league history to post 11 shutouts, and the most prolific shutout pitcher since 1916.

Koufax, who has a 24-5 record, broke the shutout mark for left-handers set by Carl Hubbell, who pitched 10 for the 1933 New York Giants. Koufax' 11th was the most by any pitcher since Grover Cleveland Alexander pitched 16 for Philadelphia Phillies in 1916.

Informed he had made only 87 pitches, Koufax appeared astonished.

"You don't say," he exclaimed. "Why I don't believe ever pitched a game when I made under 100 pitches."

Then, he admitted: "It wasn't my best game, but it was my biggest."

While the Cardinals and Dodgers were playing the big one, San Francisco Giants clubbed Milwaukee Braves 3-1, Philadelphia Phillies downed New York Mets 4-3, Cincinnati Reds edged Houston Colts 4-3 and Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates split. The Cubs took the opener of a two-nighter 3-1, the Pirates the nightcap 4-3.

Cleveland Indians edged the American League champion New York Yankees 3-2 in 10 innings. Chicago White Sox defeated Boston Red Sox 2-1, Minnesota Twins downed Detroit Tigers 3-1 and Kansas City Athletics nipped Washington Senators 4-3 in 10 innings. The Baltimore at Los Angeles twi-nighter was rained out.

PLAY KEY ROLES

The fireballing Koufax, the fleet Maury Wills and the towering Frank Howard all played key roles in the Dodgers' victory.

Koufax, of course, was the key man. He had a no-hitter until Stan Musial, the Cardinals' 42-year-old grandpa, lined a single to centre leading off the seventh, and he allowed the Cardinals two hits only in the eighth inning.

At that point, Tim McCarver and Julian Javier were on with singles, but Koufax got Dick Groat, tied for the league batting lead, to line out to Willie Davis for the inning ending out.

Wills scored the only run Koufax needed when he led off the first with a single off Curt Simmons, 15-8, stole second, raced to third on a wild pitch and scampered home on a double by Jim Gilliam.

Howard provided additional working room with a homer in the eighth following a single by Tommy Davis, and the Dodgers closed out the scoring in the ninth on an infield hit by Willie Davis, his steal of second and a double by Johnny Roseboro.

There were no big gifts. A toy bat for Spahn, symbol of his hitting prowess; a jewel box for his wife; a riding saddle for his 14-year-old son, and telegrams, including one from President Kennedy.

The money collected went to a scholarship fund in Spahn's name. The first deposit of $30,000 will be made this week and the total should reach $75,000 by the end of the year.

'World With A String ...' For Spahn

MILWAUKEE (AP) — "If they gave you the world with a string around it, it would be nothing to this."

Warren Spahn, balding, ancient left-handed pitcher, was talking about his night in Milwaukee.

There were 37,000 on hand in County Stadium Tuesday night for the speeches and fireworks. They exuded devotion.

Spahn was in the clubhouse at an early hour for him. San Francisco Giants knocked him out after three innings and won 11-3 in a National League contest.

Ailing Child Brings Liston Home Quickly

LONDON (AP) — Sonny Liston broke off a triumphant exhibition tour of Britain today to fly to the bedside of his ailing 12-year-old daughter, Eleanor, in the United States.

The world heavyweight champion booked out for Denver, Colo., but promised to return the first chance he gets. His advisor, Jack Nilon, said:

"Sonny is worried. I do not know what is wrong with the child. We hope to come back to clear up our remaining three engagements here."

Old Favorites at Home In New Uplands Scene

... pro since 1922

Uplands Golf Club appears to be embarking on a new and brighter era, but old favorites are still blended happily with modern innovations at the Cadboro Bay Road course.

Members of the 42-year-old course signal the start of what promises to be a more colorful and vigorous period tonight when they officially open their new clubhouse.

Adjacent to the 13th tee and built at an approximate cost of $150,000, the attractive ranch-style building replaces the former clubhouse that was gutted by fire last summer.

On the site of the old clubhouse, which was constructed shortly after the club went into operation, is now a much-needed parking lot.

Amid the modern furnishings and more luxurious facilities appears to be growing a greater club spirit and members are expected to take a more active interest in Uplands activities than ever before.

However, old friends and traditions are still an important part of the Uplands scene and many will be prominent tonight during the opening reception from 5 to 7 p.m.

Squarely in the spotlight will be Dr. W. G. Wilson, the club's oldest member who will officially open the clubhouse. Due to celebrate his 95th birthday Thursday, Dr. Wilson is still an eager divoter and usually plays 12 holes three days each week.

With him will be a long-time golfing pal, 94-year-old Arthur Thompson, a club member for 32 years and still spry on the fairways.

Also joining in the festivities will be several other veterans, like 83-year-old Bob Mayhew and assistant-secretary Charlie Smith, a former club president who has been associated with Uplands for 30 years.

Representing a total of about 80 years of service to the club will be professional Walter Gravlin and assistant-pro Johnny Wren. Gravlin has handled the professional's post since opening day on July 1, 1922, and Wren started as his assistant in 1925. The third member of the pro-shop staff, Chuck Brown, has been on the job for 35 years.

Uplands got its start when several members of the former United Services Golf Club became unhappy with crowded conditions around the nine-hole layout at Esquimalt's Macaulay Point.

They decided to look for something better, obtained farm property at Uplands and laid out 18 holes. Gravlin, then a pro for three years, moved with them and has watched the club grow in stature for four decades.

Obtaining sufficient members may have been a problem in the early years, but there have been no worries on that score for several seasons. The list is chock full with more than 800 members on the books. Of these, more than 750 are active, including 456 men, 226 women and 72 juniors.

Several other changes to improve the course are planned for the future and members today feel the fairway future of Uplands was never brighter.

Sooners Win PCBL Title

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Oklahoma City 89ers won the Pacific Coast League baseball championship Tuesday night, blanking Spokane Indians 4-0 behind the nine-hit hurling of Ben Johnson and Tom Borland.

The 89ers, who won the series opener, then dropped the next three games before blowing down the Indians in three straight tilts here to win the series, 4-3, extended Spokane's scoreless string to 24 innings.

NO DOUBT ABOUT IT—NON-SMOKER HAS EDGE

CHICAGO (UPI) — The American Medical Association says scientific evidence shows smoking really does "cut the wind" of athletes.

"There is no longer any room for doubt that athletes should not smoke," the AMA said.

The AMA's committee on medical aspects of sports said 10 inhalations of cigarette smoke may reduce the ability of the lungs to take in and utilize oxygen by as much as 50 per cent.

"In any close finish between well-matched athletes, the non-smoker has the edge," the AMA said.

Vancouver Boys Appear In Hurry to Get Home

CORNWALL — Vancouver Carlings, Western Canada Senior Lacrosse champions, must be in a hurry to get home.

The Carlings showed nothing but impatience Tuesday night as they ran to a top-sided 19-3 win over St. Catharines Athletics in the first game of the best-of-seven series for the Canadian Lacrosse Championship and the Mann Cup.

The Vancouver crew, who were "tired" according to their coach, dominated almost every phase of the game as they easily whipped the Eastern Canadian champions.

Showing why they were heavy favorites in the series, the Carlings scored two goals in the opening minute, and built up leads of 6-1, 12-1 and 15-2 after each of the first three periods.

Displaying a strongly balanced attack, the Vancouver team had nine players share in the scoring.

Defenceman Gordie Gimple scored four goals, Wayne Pecknold three, Fred Usselman, Bill Barbour, Bill Chisolm, Sid Warwick and Bob Babcock two each, and Garry Stevens and Bob Mash counted singles.

For the Athletics, defenceman Gary Hind scored a pair and Glen Lott one.

The major differences in the one-sided contest seemed to be the goaltending and marksmanship of the two teams.

Vancouver goaltender Merv Schweitzer stopped 55 of 58 shots by St. Catharines' shooters, while the Western players launched just 38 shots, scoring on exactly half of them.

St. Catharines coach Jim McNulty said he is considering using his spare goaltender, Pat Baker, to replace regular Bob McCreedy for the second game.

"Bob has been under pressure for a solid month of playoffs," said McNulty. "He deserves a rest."

The Athletics weren't as outplayed as the score would indicate—they hit goalposts five times—but neither did they carry the play as the shots on goal would indicate.

The Westerners out-ran the more deliberate Eastern champs, made a few mistakes and made the most of their opportunities.

"We've just got to slow them down," said McNulty, aiming now at the second game scheduled for Thursday night here. The third game will be Saturday night and the fourth Sunday afternoon.

"We played right into their hands by trying to run with them," he said. "From here on we've got to concentrate on checking."

The Athletics may have their hands full. "We didn't play our best lacrosse," said MacKay.

"The boys were tired and weren't running like they did against New Westminster in the western finals." Vancouver won that round four games to two.

If they ever get their second wind, they may be heading home Sunday night.

FOOTBALL ROUNDUP

Kapp, Fleming Have the Hurts

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI) — Could a dislocated pinky and a break in a tiny arm bone decide whether or not the British Columbia Lions wind up in first place in the Western Football Conference?

Maybe. The finger belongs to Lions' field general Joseph Kapp. He's been the key man in the B.C. surge to the top rung in the west. Most of the credit for their seven and one record must be dumped on his 220-pound frame.

Kapp has come up with the big play each time out to keep his mates on top. With the western season half gone he has rushed for 219 yards on 44 carries, and although coach Bobby Dobbs of the second place Calgary Stampeders says he doesn't worry about Kapp's running ability, the rest of the Canadian Football League coaches don't agree.

The fracture belongs to half-back Willie Fleming. The former Iowa flash is currently enjoying his finest rushing season since coming to Canada. After seven games he is the

Trabert Ends Pro Tennis Activities

LONDON (AP) — Tony Trabert, the new head man of the pro tennis travelling show, announced his retirement today, both as a player and a front office man.

Trabert, who lost 6-2, 6-3 to Ken Rosewall in the Wembley pro tournament Tuesday night, said he will travel with the tour through South Africa next month and then quit.

The Cincinnati player holds the title of executive manager of the Professional Tennis Players Association. He took over the pros' business affairs from Jack Kramer.

In other results of the Wembley tournament: Mal Anderson, Australia, beat Barry MacKay, Dayton, Ohio, 6-3, 6-3.

Andres Gimenez, Spain, beat Mike Davies, Britain, 7-5, 6-2.

Lew Hoad, Australia, beat Louis Ayala, Chile, 6-3, 6-3.

The rules changes were proposed last May by a joint American-British committee at Turnberry, Scotland.

Canada's position has not been made clear. In the past, the Royal Canadian Golf Association always had adopted rules of the Royal and Ancient Club. It is presumed Canada will again stick to St. Andrews rulings.

The USGA code will include four changes which its British counterparts rejected. They are:

1. Flagstick: A ball striking an unattended flagstick when played from the putting green or within 20 yards of the hole will entail a penalty of loss of hole in match play and two strokes in stroke play. At present there is no penalty for striking an unattended flagstick which is in the hole.

2. Unplayable ball: The penalty will be reduced from two strokes to one for dropping a ball from an unplayable lie under an optional procedure; also, as a new alternative, a ball may be dropped within two club-lengths of the point where the unplayable ball lay as well as behind that point, as at present. The stroke-and-distance alternative has been retained.

3. Provisional ball: May be played only for a ball which may be lost or out of bounds. Thus, a provisional ball may not be played for a ball which may be unplayable or in a water hazard. The British code for 1964 will allow a provisional ball for a ball which may be lost, out of bounds or unplayable.

4. Local rules: Authority is given for several local rules differing from those in the St. Andrews appendix to the rules.

One deals with a ball out of bounds and will allow local committees to permit dropping a ball, under a penalty of one stroke, within two club-lengths of the place where the original ball last crossed the boundary line.

The two bodies also agreed on clarification in the wording of the rule on a ball overhanging a hole and on the penalty for carrying too many clubs, and simplified and clarified 21 of the 41 rules of golf.

The wording on the rule of a ball overhanging a hole will read: "In an effort to prevent long delays to determine whether a ball on the lip of the hole is moving, rule 33 will provide that when any part of the ball overhangs the edge of the hole, the owner will not be allowed more than a few seconds to determine whether it is at rest; if by then the ball has not fallen into the hole, it is automatically deemed to be at rest."

On using too many clubs, the rule will read: "Penalty for exceeding the maximum of 14 clubs will be limited to a maximum per round of loss of two holes in match play and four strokes in stroke play for each excess club. Any such club must be declared out of play immediately upon discovery. There is to be no change in the permissible number of clubs."

TEE TOPICS

By ERNIE FEDORUK

That bursary tournament they run off in Ontario every year for Canada's young golf professionals is a grand idea. Except for one thing.

Sponsors of the affairs have not, as yet, indicated that the tournament might be played anywhere except in Ontario. The eastern pros find this fine and dandy, but it can lead to hardship cases among westerners who take the time and trouble to make the long journey to Lower Canada.

So . . . The B.C. Professional Golfers' Association might have the answer.

In case it has escaped your attention, the bursary is for pros under 30. The top three finishers split a $5,000 pot with the understanding the money will be used to sponsor a trip on the U.S. golf trail.

This year, seven British Columbians, all from the Vancouver area, campaigned in the MacNaughton-Brookes bursary. Others were interested, but for financial reasons had to forsake the trip.

Let's Have Our Own Tournament

As it turned out, the seven who went all received financial aid. The BCPGA paid out about $1,500 to look after the needs of three. The other four were assisted by members of their respective clubs.

Here's what the BCPGA suggests, it has been learned from a most reliable source:

"If we're going to spend $1,500, why not spend it in jolly old B.C.? Let's run our own bursary tournament!"

Damn, Sam, that's what I call good thinking!

This will afford most, if not all of the West Coast golfers, a chance to try for the big trip rather than a select seven. These are good times for go, and it shouldn't be too difficult to find a sponsor (or co-sponsor) for the West Coast bursary event.

The tournament could be run off on its own, or it might be played in conjunction with the B.C. Open. The BCPGA, we hear, favors the latter plan.

Our Dickie Youngest Class 'A' Pro

At any rate, a West Coast bursary tournament might be a big break for promising young belters like Victoria's Dickie Munn.

Munn is 20 and is the youngest golfer ever to hold a Class "A" professional's certificate in Canada. He finished a stroke behind Tacoma's Al Feldman and Stan Leonard of Vancouver in the B.C. Open (Feldman won the playoff).

In the CPGA tournament at Edmonton a week later, Munn finished 11th. ("That 11th-place finish in Edmonton gave me more satisfaction than my third-place finish in the B.C. Open," Munn says.)

At 16, he was one of the few Canadians ever to qualify for the U.S. junior champs. At 17, he was runner-up to Victoria's Laurie Kerr in the B.C. Amateur final.

There are other young pros, like Munn, who have credentials. All they need is a push.

The BCPGA plan could provide it.

SHORT CHIPS: F. W. Bowman, 76-year-old grandfather, scored a hole-in-one on Cedar Hill's 16th Tuesday. He was playing with Jeff Jeffries at the time. Al Macleod rallied on the final nine to defeat Noel Pumphrey 2 and 1 in their 36-hole playoff for the Gorge Vale club crown. Pumphrey, runner-up in the Canadian junior this year, was three up after 27 holes but ran into putting woes on the final nine. Fred Groome defeated John Poole by a similar 2 and 1 score to win the "B" championship.

B.C. champion Bill Wakeham, back from Des Moines and the Americas Cup matches, has had just enough time to pack a change of clothes. . . . He leaves for Astoria, Ore., next week to campaign in the PNGA's Hudson Cup matches. . . . A week later, the 22-year-old Gorge Vale ace leaves for Australia and the Commonwealth matches. . . . The Canadians also will play in the Australian national championships and then will visit New Zealand for five or six days.

Laurie Kerr, all done with the landscaping I'm guessing, tossed up a par 70 (playing off the new back tees) to lead the qualifiers in Colwood club championships. . . . Bob Moss, happy with his game this summer, scored the big upset in the quarterfinals of the Uplands club event. . . . Moss beat former champion Gordie Fellow, one up. . . . He'll play Claude Heggie in next Sunday's semifinals. . . . Also advancing to the fours were Freddie Ranson and Bob Walker. . . . Victoria and district committee will hold its next meeting in the new Uplands clubhouse on Sept. 28.

SOUNDS PLEASANT

Trejos at first declined an invitation to show his skill here in favor of going to Tanforan. But stories of salmon fishing and hunting caught his ear as they did the ear of J. D. Jessop, America's leading rider in 1945. Jessop and such other prominent reinmen as Lee Wall, Elcor Aragundi and Carlos DeMello, plus George Miller, Sandown's best in 1962, will be present.

Aragundi reined three winners on the final day in Vancouver, appears to be hitting his peak form. Approximately 250 riders are expected.

DeMello came up with a sterling ride on Uncle Hanswilly to win the prolonged 2 1/2-mile closing day marathon.

DRUCE SWITCHES GOALIES AGAIN

Oshawa Goes All Out To Entertain Our Boys

By GEORGE CAMPBELL
(Special to The Times)

O SHAWA, Ont. — Victoria Shamrocks and Oshawa Green Gaels resume their Canadian junior championship series at nearby Whitby tonight, and lacrosse fans here are convinced that this is the big one.

And you have to hand it to Tom Druce. He's a gambler! So far, a successful one.

The Victoria coach came up with a mild surprise Tuesday by announcing he will continue to alternate his goalies. That means Bob Fisher, Rocks' regular, will be between the pipes for tonight's vital fifth game.

The best-of-seven Minto Cup series is tied 2-2.

Druce continues to alternate his goalies despite the fact that Norm Nestman was positively brilliant when Victoria deadlocked the series with a 3-6 victory Monday.

DE LUKE TREATMENT

Meanwhile, in addition to lacrosse, players and executives of the Shamrocks are finding the proverbial cold east considerably more friendly than anticipated.

The hospitality shown the visiting westerners "has been out of this world," says Druce. "We've never been treated like this anywhere."

Tuesday night they were the guests of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League at the Leafs' Peterborough training camp. The Shamrocks watched the Leafs play an exhibition against their American League farm club, Rochester Americans.

The Oshawa team, in its first year in lacrosse, is playing up most of the tab.

City officials have arranged such a busy schedule on "off" days that the Victoria club can't possibly take advantage of everything.

There have been two full-scale banquets, a trip to Niagara Falls, a tour of Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens and a golf tournament, complete with prizes.

The Shamrocks also were the guests of the Oshawa team Sunday at the Canadian Football League game between Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tiger-Cats at Toronto's Exhibition Stadium.

And the players have passed to any of the four Oshawa theatres as long as they're in town. The largest bowling alley has offered free bowling.

"If they want to stand around instead of play, they can do it in this rink instead of out west," he said.

The Leafs, outshot by Rochester 30-28, had two goals from Dave Keon and one each from Frank Mahovlich, Tim Horton and Red Kelly.

Swedish goaltender Kjell Svensson was in the nets for the Americans, and Imlach confirmed that he and Johnny Bower will be the Toronto goalies on the western excursion.

In Detroit, goalie Hank Basen and right winger Jack McIntyre, delayed through business commitments, reported to the Red Wings training camp Tuesday.

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of World Book Encyclopedia to Susan Mitchell, 9, Peterboro, Ont., Canada, for her question:

What is the Pre-Cambrian Shield?

The rocky layers of the earth's crust are like the pages of a diary. Limestone was built under the sea. Lava was poured from ancient volcanoes. Fine marble and heavy gneiss are rocks that have been remade from limestone and granite. The events of the earth's long-long life story are written in this crusty diary.

A knight in armor carried a sword and wore a shield of metal on his arm. The shield might be round or oval or some other shape. But it would be curved in a hump to fit on the arm of the knight. Geologists found a vast world of hard, old rocks in North America, and because it was shield-shaped they called it a shield.

It may be called the Canadian Shield or the Pre-Cambrian Shield. Later, humps of such ancient rocks were found near the surface in other lands. All the continents, it seems, rest on Pre-Cambrian Shields

Worn Flat by Wind

While new layers were being added, other events were going on in the crust of the earth. Mountains grew and crusty layers were pushed up in folded wrinkles. The Pre-Cambrian rocks rose above sea level. Then the mountains were worn flat by wind and water. The top layers of the crust were washed away. The hard, Pre-Cambrian Shield was left at the top of the earth's crust.

The Pre-Cambrian Shield of North America is centred around Hudson Bay. It spreads east from the Great Lakes to Greenland and Northern Europe. Some two billion years ago, this vast area was a massive mountain system. Ages of weathering have long since worn and leveled the ancient hills. Other shield layers were raised and stripped bare in Asia and Europe.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Jane Morgan has a "weekend ghost" at her home in Kennebunkport, Me. Peter Sellers is concerned about poltergeists, the furniture-moving spooks.

And Imogene Coca's sure that gremlins filched her wallet and credit cards from her bag... hid her reading glasses in her shoes and tossed them onto a top shelf... that something spooky is rattling the wall of her fancy hotel suite here.

How are you feeling? Imogene—here to talk about her new TV show "Grind!"—said maybe the gremlins are overactive because this is "retrograde Mercury," which is hot news astrologically. Something's lousing her up.

At a Hollywood party somebody told her about the Moors bringing culture to Spain. It was brand new to "Coco." She worried... about Rome... Greece... France... especially Germany. (I don't know why Germany.)

"I called Bill Dana and left an urgent message. He's smart. He'd know," she said.

"Three days later he gets my urgent message while in a meeting. He rushes out. 'Coca,' he says, 'you called me?'"

"Yes, Bill... who brought civilization to Germany?"

DEAD SILENCE

"There was the dearest silence. Then Bill said, 'I don't know. I'll call you back.' He never has!"

Imogene fears she may be a "phantom" which is not somebody who fears phantoms; it's somebody who can't cope with anything.

"They played an awful trick on me our first program. Telly Savalas was to chase me with a pick-axe. He told me, 'I wish they wouldn't make me use a real axe. I'm a method actor. They give me an axe, I have to swing it at somebody.'"

"Believe me, in that chase scene, I REALLY RAN."

That's how things go in Show Biz. Jane Morgan's weekend ghost that's a weekend guest stamps around angrily slamming doors and rattling chains. Several human weekend guests have "seen" it. Jane bets guests $25—in advance—they won't come back a second time. Lots of them decide not to come the first time. Smart gal, that Jane!

Rip Torn phoned in a volcanic rage about the way I wrote the announcement of his secret marriage to Geraldine Page. "In the part of the country I come from (Texas), men are taught to be tight-lipped, and the distasteful side makes the announcements," he snorted.

"And that's the way it happened. She announced it." He added, "I'm proud of my wife!" (And some day, Rip, when things are calmer, you're gonna introduce me to a tight-lipped Texan.)

THE MIDNIGHT EARL...

Dodger pitcher Sandy Koufax, who's won 24 games without getting too nervous, cancelled an Ed Sullivan TV guest shot—he was jittery about it. Martha Raye's daughter Melodie got engaged, but won't spill the guy's name... There will be discussions about beaming Liston's next fight to Europe via Telstar. Agent Joe Glaser's involved.

Margaret Whiting will finally record an album of her late dad's song hits, for the first time... The Civil War goes on—an Atlanta restaurant advertises its Yankee pot roast as "American pot roast"... Veteran comic David Burns, now in "A Funny Thing Happened Etc.," may get his own comedy series... The filming of "Man in the Moon" was delayed in Istanbul—Turkish customs officials allowed only one script through... Richard Widmark's new Connecticut home will include a small movie theatre.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Woody Allen insists he's not very familiar with sports cars. "For instance, I recently spent three days riding around in a Minox."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: As any lunk can tell you, one of the worst evils of drink is a bartender who won't extend credit.

EARL'S PEARLS: A bachelor believes it is better to have loved and lost than to have to get up for the 2 a.m. feeding.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "When you're through changing, you're through." Bruce Barlow.

Bee Causes Driver To Lose Control

A bee flew into a car Monday afternoon and caused the driver to lose control and crash into a power pole at Derby and Shelbourne.

Sidney Smart, 86, of 2969 Foul Bay Road, told police the bee got in behind the lens of his glasses. He was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital and then released.

WALTER REUTHER
... full production

Jobs for All
To Defeat Reds
Says Reuther

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the United Auto Workers said Tuesday western nations must achieve full employment and full production in peacetime, to defeat communism.

"We must do this because it is the only way to win the contest between freedom and tyranny," Walter Reuther told a convention of the International Woodworkers of America (IWW).

Unemployment in the United States in the past 10 years had resulted in a loss of $650,000,000,000 in the gross national product. This was a loss of $10,000 to the average American family during the 10 years.

Canada lost $30,000,000,000 in gross national product in the same period through unemployment, an average of $6,400 for each Canadian family.

"Human labor is our most perishable commodity," he said. "We threw this away." He said a system of national priorities must be worked out to put people back to work.

In a press conference later, Mr. Reuther said of Canada's giant wheat sale to Russia: "That's their (Canada's) decision to make. I don't think feeding hungry people in any way weakens our defence system."

Money for Shelters

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's $190,000,000 fallout shelter construction program was approved by the House of Representatives Tuesday. The measure would authorize $175,000,000 in federal aid to spur public and private shelter construction, and $15,600,000 to build shelters in federal buildings. Passed by voice vote, it now goes to the Senate.

2 More Sign Treaty

LONDON (AP)—Mauritania and the Dominican Republic became the 81st and 82nd nations Wednesday to sign the London copy of the limited nuclear test ban treaty.

CHEMISTS TOLD

'Science Can Cope Better Than Religion'

KITIMAT, B.C. (CP) — Dr. R. H. B. Manske, 1963-64 president of the Chemical Institute of Canada, said Tuesday that "our western civilization or the so-called Christian civilization is on its way out."

He told the Kitimat section of the CIC at a dinner meeting that for innumerable years priesthoods and philosophers have busied themselves with man's affairs.

Though their efforts had sometimes been skillful and even noble "there is neither a religion nor a philosophy that is capable of dealing with the world as it is."

He suggested that science might have an answer, though he was not hopeful.

"I am not very hopeful that the scientist will be able to solve all the problems that confront society," he said. "I do believe, however, that the scientist owes it to society and above all to himself to acquaint himself with the problems now confronting us."

"He should strive to separate emotion from his appraisal of world events."

He felt that the scientists, trained to evaluate a situation without personal involvement "is better equipped to do so than a minister of the church or the crown and he should make the effort."

The first lesson scientists should learn, he said, "is that societies are, or should be, maintained in a state of equilibrium "which will gradually shift to the right or left as the environments change slowly with the course of time."

Not only should scientists learn this lesson, they should teach it.

No form of government, said Dr. Manske, is the best form for all people and all times. Trained scientists should take on the duty "of watch dog over the truth and objectivity of society."

Liberal Asks 5% Tax On Pro Sport Events

A 5 per cent tax on all professional sports events in B.C. was proposed Monday night by Victoria Liberal candidate Bruce Humber.

All proceeds of the tax, he said, should go directly to assist and promote amateur sports and physical fitness programs.

Mr. Humber was speaking to a campaign meeting at Norway House.

The present Social Credit government has this year budgeted only $192,328 for physical culture, Mr. Humber said.

This is even less than the $657,000 "stamp fund" for sundry expenses, he added.

He termed physical fitness one of the best ways to combat delinquency.

NO CONCERN
Juvenile delinquents are costing the province $1,452,952 this year.

"Amateur sports — physical fitness — the greatest influence in developing a sound mind and a sound body in your children, does not really seem to concern your present provincial government at all," Mr. Humber said.

"It is one of the things I will battle for if elected Sept. 30."

Straight Memorizing
Just Doesn't StickBy The Reading Laboratory
(Fourteenth in a Series)

Do you know what the capital of The Netherlands is? Name the different kinds of algae. What is the precise formulation of Charles's Law?

If you had the answers to those questions on the tip of your tongue, don't bother to read any further. You already know how to memorize.

But if you couldn't answer them all, here's why: At one time in your schooling, you had to memorize the capitals. You probably remembered them, too—until the test was over. What happened was that you formed a kind of nervous "rut" in your brain between, say, The Netherlands and The Hague.

On the test, when the teacher said Netherlands, a little bell would ring, the nervous rut would connect Netherlands with The Hague—and you'd get an A on your test. But once the test was over, you didn't use the rut any more and it gradually disappeared. That's why you didn't know it today. Because memorizing works over a short period of time, but it doesn't stick.

So never be satisfied with memorization without understanding. If you understand something, it'll stick; it becomes part of you. Straight memorizing doesn't stick.

But there are times when memorization is necessary. Dates in history, formulas in physics, definitions in math, selections of poetry—all may require memorization. But memorize them only after you've understood why they should be as they are.

There seem to be three different types of memories:

Visual. Most people (about 90 per cent) have visual memories. They remember pictures better than sounds. If you have a visual memory, use it. For instance, if you have to remember a long series of items, think of a picture you can associate with each item (the sillier the better), then tie all the pictures into a single big picture and just remember that. On a test, it'll be easy to "decode" the picture.

Auditory. You may have an auditory memory. (If you're musically inclined, you'll probably be an "audiophile.") For you, the best way to memorize is in sing-song, repetitive patterns—the more tuneful the better.

Other good way that seems to work equally well for both types of memories is to make nonsense words from the first letter of each item to be memorized.

A few people remember odors more easily than they remember sounds of pictures. Despite modern research with perfumed texts, no sure-fire memorization technique for the "odorophiles" has been discovered. Suggestions from readers will be appreciated.

No matter what type you are, save the memorization until shortly before a test; it's the only way you can be sure it'll stick.

Canada Council Aims Aid to Top Scholars

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canada Council announced today it is placing more emphasis on fellowships for advanced studies and in future will require work to be done within Canada as far as possible.

Issuing its scholarship and fellowship program for 1964-65, the council estimated some 2,300 candidates will apply for approximately 500 awards worth about $1,000,000.

Major change is a shift towards more awards for students working for doctor's degrees with less emphasis at a more junior level.

Last year the council awarded approximately 150 pre-doctor's degree fellowships and 60 pre-masters' degree scholarships. This year a total of some 250 post-graduate awards are offered.

The council's program says the change in emphasis is due to the steadily growing demand at the pre-doctoral level and because sources of financial assistance now are proportionately more plentiful at the pre-master's level.

Space Stories Sold

WASHINGTON (AP)—The sale of the personal stories of the 16 United States astronauts for the next four years, for a total price of $1,040,000, was announced Tuesday night. Separate announcements were made in Chicago by Field Enterprises Educational Corporation and in New York by Life magazine.

EARLY ACTIVITY and fastest possible return to work is recommended for heart attack victims by Dr. David Gelfand, Philadelphia cardiologist. He was recently named "physician of the year."

Seiner Came From N.S.
Via Panama

VANCOUVER (CP)—A former Newfoundland plans to start fishing today after completing an uneventful 43-day, 7,500-mile trip from Lunenburg, N.S., in a 60-foot fish boat.

Clifford Keeping arrived Friday and plans to return to Vancouver Monday with about 80,000 pounds of fish.

Keeping said today he plans to use the Sylvia Ann for Danish seining for such bottom fish as sole, flounder and cod.

"Danish seining has never been given a chance out here. I heard about this boat for sale down east and went down to buy her and give her a try. Most bottom fish have been caught here by dragging."

Keeping said Nova Scotians said he would never make it to B.C. through the Panama Canal. But, sailing at an average speed of nine knots, the vessel had no difficulties.

"I guess it wasn't all luck," said Keeping, pointing to a small plaque in the wheelhouse which said: "Fisherman's prayer: O God, Thy sea is so great, and my boat is so small."

'JUMP DAY'
AT BRIDGE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Three attempted leaps from the Golden Gate bridge set a record Tuesday.

The highway patrol said there never had been so many suicide attempts within a few hours.

Officers said the three men blamed marital or love problems. All were taken to hospitals for observation.

Garden Suites Cold-Shouldered

The Esquimalt council Tuesday evening again took a firm stand against construction of garden apartments.

Plans submitted by Dr. Leonard W. Halstrom, of Regina, called for five one-storey buildings containing 38 units to be built on a triangular 1.6-acre site bounded by Colville and Hutchinson Roads and Gorge Vale golf course.

"This is the same problem as we had before," said Coun. Ernest Cassels, "a high density group is being put in a small area. I'm against it."

25 PER ACRE

The municipal engineer, John Graeme, pointed out the proposed Rockheights development, quashed July 15, had a density of 12 units per acre.

Universities Well Fed, Says Secord

A veteran Secord Tuesday night denied the provincial government is financially starving B.C. universities.

Herbert Bruch, Esquimalt MLA in the last legislature, was answering opposition charges in an address to 18 persons in Langford Community Hall.

He said about $50,000,000 will be spent in expanding physical facilities of the University of British Columbia in 10 years—dating from UBC's fund drive of six years ago.

Mr. Bruch said former UBC president Dr. Norman MacKenzie had, at the request of the government, drawn up a 10-year expansion program for $10,000,000.

PUSHED BY PREMIER

He said that it was Premier Bennett who persuaded the university to increase that to $20,000,000.

In the six years since then, says Mr. Bruch, the money spent on physical expansion is nearly $23,000,000, and the total over the 10 years—including a $19,600,000 hospital—will be about $50,000,000.

He produced a financial statement of the university for 1961-1962 which indicated UBC had an operating surplus of over $1,000,000 that fiscal year.

TRUST FUND

"This money did not go back into revenue," he said "It went into a trust fund. And the total in that trust fund at the end of that year was over $5,000,000."

Mr. Bruch is Social Credit candidate in Esquimalt in the Sept. 30 provincial election.

Adult Court To Consider Duncan Case?

An appeal was made Monday to have a 17-year-old Duncan youth tried in magistrate's court and not juvenile court, on a manslaughter charge.

The accused youth is charged in connection with the death Aug. 8 of Hugh Nesbitt of Bazzett Road, Duncan.

Crown prosecutor David Williams of Duncan argued the appeal before Mr. Justice Robert Wootton in B.C. Supreme Court in Victoria.

The judge reserved his decision. It is expected to be handed down in a few days.

Mr. Williams earlier asked for the transfer to magistrate's court but it was refused by a Duncan magistrate.

He appealed this decision on the grounds that the charge is so serious it should be tried in a senior court. Defence counsel Angelo Branca of Vancouver opposed the appeal.

He said it would not be in the interests of the accused or of society.

OPIUM FIND A RARITY POLICE SAY

VANCOUVER (CP)—Bail was set at $10,000 Monday for Jerry Wong, 25, charged with having opium in his possession for the purpose of trafficking.

A bellhop in a Vancouver hotel, he was charged after RCMP drug squad officers said they found 400 capsules of opium in his home.

Magistrate C. C. Bell set bail at $10,000 cash and remanded him to Sept. 25.

RCMP officers said it is most unusual to uncover opium any more in this area, and still more unique to find it in capsule form. They say they believe it has been hidden away, possibly for several years.

Water Shortage

HAVANA (AP)—City officials announced Tuesday Havana is getting only about half the water the population need and called it a grave shortage.

The announcement blamed lack of rain and the bad condition of the mains. It was made to explain the city's now-chronic water shortage and the rationing which has gone on for down. The money would have helped pay transportation costs to Whittby, Ont., for the Minto Cup Canadian championship series with Ottawa Green Gables.

"I have been given to understand there are five or six officials with the team. If two of them had stayed home we wouldn't have to pay that $200," said Coun. Bert Nelson.

"I'm against any part of this. They don't use our facilities (Esquimalt Sports Centre) and they drain players we have developed."

The Esquimalt share would have amounted to under $20.

Arthur Mayse

With October near and the human nesting urge climbing toward the second of its semi-annual peaks, we could do worse than pay a return call on Oak Bay realtor Don Whyte.

Last week, Mr. Whyte concentrated on pitfalls into which the family with a house to sell can stumble. Today, he warns against the buyers' hazard known in his trade as "Uncle Charley."

This fourth party to many an otherwise clearcut transaction is the character who climbs out of the car along with the young couple shopping for their first house.

Uncle Charley may switch genders and become Aunt Charlotte. He can be one well-meaning parent or one. But whether this adviser takes the form of relative or family friend, Uncle Charley can queer a deal quicker than shingles dropping off the roof.

His big trouble is that he can't see a house as suitable for young people, but only as Mom and Dad would fit into it.

Uncle Charley also tends to be over-cautious. He may be a bit of a worrier, but he doesn't work out, their recriminations will come to roost on his doorstep.

"The one I'll never forget," says Mr. Whyte, "introduced himself as a builder. We had a nice property, the last of four completed in a new tract on which the construction people hadn't fixed their end price."

"Well, this Uncle Charley steered the couple away from that house, and by turning it down, they made the pair who did buy it a gift of $2,000 in appreciation. But here's the caper: we learned later that the old gentleman had never built anything except a couple of barns in Saskatchewan."

So much for Uncle C. Avoid him, agents suggest, unless he's a bona fide professional you've hired to appraise the joint. Otherwise, you're courting the condition recognized as 'buyers' remorse.'

This results from a change of heart after the offer to purchase has been put in writing as British Columbia law requires, and passed on to the vendor.

Mr. Whyte—and please to remember he says it, not me—finds women especially susceptible to buyers' remorse. Often their reasons are plain psychic: they just don't like the feeling the house gives them. A more tangible reason, though, is that they've spotted a nest they like better.

"This can be be expensive," Mr. Whyte points out, "since a deposit generally accompanies the offer, and it's the owner's choice as to whether he'll let a turncoat prospect back out a deal."

What, today, do people look for in houses?

Let a colonial come on the market, and the phone doesn't stop ringing. Buyers like the grace coupled with promise of security that colonial architecture offers.

Together, the type of family living where everyone's nose was in everybody's else's business, is now a dead duck. Victoria realtors are finding that while husband, wife and children companions, they've decided they need a certain amount of privacy.

Hence, a demand for the multiple-bedroom house, and a brisk revival of interest in the large, stately old residences that charm the eye in Fairfield and Oak Bay south. Of these, some which were turned into duplexes in immediate postwar years are now being reconverted to single-family dwellings.

This leaning toward the old but soundly-built house also reflects the modern trend toward larger families.

But if renovations are to be made, the buyers want them attended to before they take over. Do-it-yourself seems to be on the wane, too.

Another significant rift in the pattern has come with the high-rises, which are changing more than our skyline.

Once a house-seller's mainstay, the "grain cheque market" has declined in the last five years.

"From friends already out here," says Don Whyte, "and they all have friends, the prairie farmers learn there are a number of interesting things to do with their retirement years besides gardening. They want to go fishing, and play golf, and take winter trips to California or Hawaii. So a lot of them are moving into apartments."

That's all for now, except to note that a place with detached garage is a dog-and-pup, and to wish you good househunting.

building on Government (at left) and then to the neat, vacant space at bottom centre that once was a service station. Eventually, buildings to left and right of civic theatre (centre) also will disappear. Early next month, city hall staff will move to Bastion Square Courthouse so that construction crews can rebuild the interior and erect a city hall

Ferry Strike Could Come 'At Any Time'

Dissension Rampant Union Man Charges

B.C. Ferries are "a hot-bed of dissension," a union official said today.

Bob Cook, president of the marine engineer section of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers (CLC) told the Times a strike would probably result if the government refuses ferry workers' requests.

"I don't think anyone could stop it," he said. "It could come at any time."

Crews of two ferries staged a wildcat strike last month over their working hours. It ended when ferries manager Monty Aldous promised an early hearing.

Ferry workers, who are members of the B.C. Government Employees' Association, are seeking representation in the union of their own choice.

Government action has been taken to hear grievances from "committees of people from each area of the company coming as delegates."

EXPEDIENCY

He said: "We believe the premier ordered this kind of thing out of political expediency. He's trying to keep the trouble quiet during the election."

He said the men don't want this.

"They don't like being put on the spot as individuals, but the government won't allow them to send certified representatives."

Mr. Cook said he believed the company intended to form a type of "company union. But the men don't want it."

Workers' grievances, he said, are "pages long."

COHO RETURNS WHEN SEIZURE HITS TOURIST

Black Ball Ferries' Mv Co-ho performed a fast about-face en route to Port Angeles this morning when a passenger suffered a seizure.

The ship was beyond the breakwater when it turned back with American visitor William Owen, 65, of Orinda, Calif., who was dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital.

He is survived by the widow Olga, who was travelling with him. The remains will be sent to Orinda by Thomson and Irving funeral home.

800 PLAY

Seattle Men Take Lead In Bridge

About 400 pairs, a total of nearly 800 players, took part in second day of the Pacific Northwest regional bridge tournament at the Empress Hotel on Tuesday.

Taking the lead in the men's pairs session, due to be completed this afternoon, are Emery Selmes and M. LeFevre of Seattle.

In second place are Brian May of Richmond and Joe Jacob of Vancouver.

A Victoria man, Eric Goodwin, is paired with world champion Oswald Jacoby, and they are in third place.

Also to be completed this afternoon are the women's pairs, led by two Seattle women at the end of Tuesday's play.

Leading are Betty Young and Phyllis Nobak.

June-Budd Hicks and Mrs. M. L. Howell of Vancouver are in second place, and in third spot are Mary Hutchinson of Corvallis and Marge Berg of Salem.

TWO ROOMS

The tournament, easily the biggest ever held in Victoria, now takes up two rooms in the Empress—the Crystal Ballroom and Georgian Lounge.

It could spill over into another room if the players expected to be here by the end of the week show up.

Thursday's play includes the master pairs championship, which will be played off in two sessions, one on Thursday afternoon and the other in the evening.

Seven Escape Nanaimo Fire

A Nanaimo family of six lost everything they possessed when an early morning fire destroyed their home today.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Botha, their four young children, and boarder Jim Allen escaped only with the clothes they could grab before the flames swept the frame home.

Mr. Botha, who works at Franklin River, was home to see a doctor on the advice of his company.

He was sitting up reading the paper when he went to the kitchen to get the other section and noticed the back porch in flames. Mrs. Botha said it is unlikely any of the family would have survived if her husband had not been awake.

Murder Victim 'Shaken Up' For Threatening to Squeal

Earlier Fracas Revealed To Reporter by Tipster

A report that George Down was given a "shaking up" two weeks before he was murdered is being investigated by city detectives.

The report came in an anonymous phone call to a Times reporter.

The caller was a young man, judging from his voice. There was no way of telling whether the call was a hoax or a serious report.

The information was passed along by the Times to police investigating the 19-day-old murder.

It suggests that Down might have encountered his murderer or murderers at least once before his skull was smashed in the Hudson's Bay Co. parking lot in the early hours of Aug. 30.

The caller, who refused to identify himself, said he "understood Down was shaken up by some other kids because he had threatened to squeal on them for something."

This happened about two weeks before the murder, the caller said.

"The way I heard it, there could have been three of them," said the caller, and hung up.

Three youths were seen with Down, a 17-year-old delivery boy, in Coffee Mac's half an hour before he was killed.

They have not come forward in response to a police plea for public help.

And three youths tried to break into Christ Church Cathedral on Monday night, possibly in an attempt to recover what police suspect was the weapon used to kill Down.

A foot-long steel bar was found in a collection box there Monday night when the box was being cleaned out.

A youth was asked to leave the church when found there after dark by a church official, who then locked the doors.

When a woman knocked at the door, and was admitted, some time later, the same youth accompanied by two other teenagers was seen standing behind the woman.

She reported that the three had followed her to several other doors of the church which were also locked.

The steel bar is about an inch wide, and three-eighths of an inch thick.

Minute deposits of something resembling dried blood, and specimens looking like hair, were found clinging to the bar under cellulose tape wrapped around one end.

It is being examined in the RCMP crime laboratory in Vancouver.

Since vestibule doors of Christ Church Cathedral are locked overnight, the weapon must have been in the murderer's possession at least overnight.

The box is cleaned out every 10 or 15 days.

Down was struck down from behind by two powerful blows that sent him reeling and crushed the back of his head.

18-Year-Olds To Get Vote If NDP Wins

The man who is billed by the New Democratic Party as the next attorney-general of B.C. said today he would lower the voting age to 18 from the present 19.

Alex Macdonald, seeking re-election Sept. 30 as MLA for Vancouver East, told a press conference in Vancouver this is one of a number of legislative and electoral reforms in the NDP program.

Party leader Robert Strachan has already stated Mr. Macdonald will be the attorney-general in his cabinet.

Mr. Macdonald's father, Malcolm, was provincial attorney-general in a Liberal government prior to 1920.

BILL OF RIGHTS

Mr. Macdonald junior said the NDP will introduce a bill of rights, appoint public defenders and allow anyone to sue the government.

It will also bring a Hansard reporting system to the legislature, investigate televising of sessions, re-distribute the seats and limit election campaign spending.

Mr. Macdonald said the NDP will in addition appoint an "ombudsman" who would hear citizens' complaints about government and investigate their validity.

"He will have the right to make a report to the legislature which will be made public, if the provincial government or one of its agencies or one of its crown corporations refuses to do anything to rectify a complaint which he feels is justified," Mr. Macdonald said.

KEEP PACE

Another NDP proposal is to establish a law reform committee—"to keep the law up to date."

It would be composed of judges, lawyers and professors and would report to the legislature.

Mr. Macdonald said that the NDP would institute an oral question period in the legislature to replace the existing written question and answer system.

"The people have a right to be informed," he said.

Redistribution would be conducted on the recommendations of an independent commission, Mr. Macdonald said, and if necessary it would enlarge the number of seats in the House.

BY POPULATION

He made it clear, however, the NDP favors representation by population rather than by area.

ELECTION NOTEBOOK

By FRANK RUTTER

Not a Burp in a Ballot Box

Straw polls are illegal during provincial campaigns but the Elections Act says nothing about hamburgers.

Enterprising Vancouver drive-in restaurateur John Dyes is running what he calls "three convenient polling stations" where patrons can express their opinions by buying Bennett Burgers, Strachan Burgers, Fulton Burgers or Perrault Burgers.

They're all the same price—49 cents.

The Bennett Burger contains meat, lettuce and cheese. "Give us credit for this one, my friends," says the menu.

The Strachan Burger has meat, cheese and onions. "Recommended by your doctor."

The Fulton version has meat and cheese only. "Perrault Burgers are meat and lettuce only."

Mr. Dyes says Strachan Burgers held an early lead, but Bennett Burgers have recently taken over.

Mr. Dyes was told by electoral officials to cut it out, but he says he's testing hamburger popularity, not politicians.

Anyway, he added, if he does get fined the legal penalty of $250 he'll have made many times more than this in sales.

Well, the Profumo affair finally made it to the B.C. election campaign—Tuesday.

Conservative leader Davie Fulton uttered the infamous name in a speech to the Kiwanis Club.

He said he had been casting about for a non-political topic on which to address them.

"I thought that Profumo was about as non-political as you could get—but it would have been better if he had been a Social Creditor," Mr. Fulton said ruefully.

Premier Bennett promises Vancouver a new bridge but no fences.

He told North Shore residents Tuesday there would be a new Burrard Inlet bridge "in the near future" if he was re-elected but told reporters "don't fence me in" when pressed for details.

No, Victorians, you don't vote for Griffin versus Chant or Skillings versus Forbes on Sept. 30. It's not an individual contest in the three-seat riding.

Local campaign headquarters have received a number of inquiries from residents asking

"Who is paired off with who?"

There are three candidates for each party and you have three votes. You can vote all three for one party or split them up.

North Vancouver Liberal Gordon Gibson has challenged Premier Bennett to a TV debate on finance.

He wired him Tuesday after the premier had issued a challenge to Alberta university professor Dr. E. J. Hanson, whose series of articles on B.C. finance are running in a Vancouver newspaper.

Last-minute talks may avert the strike which threatens to close four Vancouver breweries and Labatt's Victoria brewery before the weekend.

Victoria union representative (local 280), George Parks flew to Vancouver this morning.

Brewery managements today called for union-management talks, which began at 1:30 p.m.

Victoria president, Frank

Hopwood said the outlook was good.

"We think something could definitely come out of this," he said.

Labatt's Victoria received 48 hour strike notice at 8 a.m. today, but a strike will not automatically follow.

Brewery workers are seeking a 26-cent hourly wage boost over a two-year period on the current basic $2.32 per hour.

It failed to appear when called, even though it hadn't far to go.

City court is held in Saanich municipality's police and fire building.

Harry Jones of Port Renfrew pleaded guilty in Sooke RCMP court Tuesday to possessing a stolen shotgun.

He was remanded in custody to Sept. 26 for trial.

An impaired driver who couldn't raise the $250 fine chose 21 days in jail instead.

Victor Margison, 1036 Pendergast, was convicted on the charge in city police court Tuesday.

Court was told a constable had to vault over the hood of Margison's car to avoid being hit by it. Cons. James Smith was escorting two young girls across the street at Johnson and Broad when the accused man's car turned the corner.

He put up his hand to stop it, but the car kept coming, so the constable put his hand on the hood and vaulted over the fender, landing on his feet.

Here's the new look in the Mobile and Gift Shop which recently opened in the new wing of the Royal Jubilee Hospital. Shop is operated and staffed by volunteer members of the Junior Auxiliary. Here the new pale green uniform is modelled by convenor, Mrs. John Pennington, right. Originator of the thrift shop, Mrs. R. S. O'Meara, is on left and her assistant, Mrs. C. H. Harrington, centre. In background are refrigeration units for arranged flowers, similar to the one Mrs. Pennington is holding.

In contrast to the new look is the old mobile shop which was started as a thrift shop in 1950. Beginning as a small enterprise it "grew like Topsy." Pictured here is the old shop and in one of the old volunteer uniforms is Mrs. A. A. Meharry.

The New Look at Royal Jubilee Hospital Mobile Shop

The new mobile gift shop, which opened recently in the foyer of the new wing of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, may look like a permanent fixture but the service is still mobile.

Operated by the Junior Auxiliary to the hospital, the shop was inaugurated in 1959 by Mrs. R. S. O'Meara. It was her "brain-child." No sooner did the hospital's board of directors grant permission for such a shop than the "store on wheels" went into operation.

Beginning with a loan of $400 from the junior auxiliary a staff of volunteers set up shop. Convenor was Mrs. O'Meara and Mrs. C. J. Harrington became her assistant. The shop was open five days a week and twice weekly patients in the entire hospital were visited.

From the mobile go-cart they were able to buy candy, cigarettes, note paper, magazines and toilet articles.

MEN WILL VOTE FOR WOMEN

MONTREAL (CP) — Judy LaMarsh, federal health and welfare minister, Tuesday paused in her campaign for the federal pension plan and spoke on "women in politics."

She told members of a service club that it is neither easier nor more difficult for a woman than a man to be a politician.

Miss LaMarsh said it is well known that a woman would rather vote for a man than for a woman, even if the latter gives very serious promises.

Housewife Baked Her Way To $25,000 Cooking Prize

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—A former Toronto woman, now a Detroit housewife, won a fancy $25,000 in a baking contest Tuesday with this far: a hamburger and bean casserole.

Mrs. Roman Walilko, wife of an engineer and mother of five between nine and 20, made her concoction so tasty, however, that she won out over 99 other contestants.

She calls her prize-winning dish a "hungry boys' casserole." She serves it for buffets or picnics because "it is simple and quick to make, economical and attractive to look at."

Besides ground beef it combines garbanzo beans with celery, onion, green pepper, garlic, tomato paste, pork and beans, and chick peas. It's topped with almond-olive biscuits.

Mrs. Walilko baked her original recipe Monday in competition on ranges set up at a hotel here. Results of the judges' tasting were announced at a luncheon Tuesday.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Happiness Depends on the Positive Events In Your Life

Happiness is a positive quality! You are not happy just because you have not been sick or have not had any bad luck or have no worries. Everyone has those. If you are happy it is because you are aware of, and concentrate on, the fine things which happen to you. You are not happy because of the bad things which did not happen.

I was so interested in reading a report of research done by Dr. Norman M. Bradburn, well-known psychologist.

Dr. Bradburn said, "It is the lack of joy rather than the presence of sorrow, that makes the difference." To me, that is the most fundamental comment concerning happiness I have ever read. Some folks are joyous in the most trying circumstances, while others are glum in the most favorable. We are not children of fate, tossed hither and thither by the winds of chance.

The same thing is true of vibrant health. This is not just the absence of illness; it is a positive, singing, bubbling sense of well-being. It makes daily life an adventure and turns trouble into a challenge!

One can be free of rashes, stiff joints, headaches and backaches, and still not have superlative health, because superlative health is positive. It is not the absence of physical discomforts, but the presence of that extra measure of energy, that keener-than-usual enthusiasm, and a rejuvenating joy in being alive. Just as happiness depends on the positive good things you do. It doesn't matter so much what we don't do if we have sufficient exercise, indulge in good nutrition, get enough sleep and relaxation and have a healthy outlook. It's the positive qualities and experiences which count in both health and happiness.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Pep" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Will Live in Toronto

After a honeymoon trip to San Francisco and Monterey, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Watt will motor to Toronto, where they will make their new home.

They were married in Knox Presbyterian Church on Saturday evening. Rev. A. A. Rat-tray heard the marriage vows and organist was R. Cox.

The bride is the former Donna Joy Peck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman L. Peck, 238 Stermont Road. Groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Watt of Vancouver.

FLORAL DECOR

White gladioli decorated the church for the occasion. Pews were marked with white heather.

Entering the church on her father's arm, the bride was lovely in a dainty gown of white organza that was fashioned with full-length bouffant skirt, fitted bodice, rounded neckline and lily point sleeves. The three-tier bouffant veil of illusion net misted from a cluster of white roses. White heather, brought from Scotland by the groom's uncle, William Watt, Vancouver, high-lighted the bouquet of white

Talisman roses, stephanotis and lily.

Maid of honor, Miss Bonnie Williams, was dressed in turquoise brocade while bridesmaids, the Misses Muriel Watt, the groom's sister, and Sandra Briddick, cousin of the bride, both from Vancouver, had toning gowns of taffeta with nylon chiffon overskirts.

The eight-year-old sister of the bride, Noni, wore a frock of turquoise chiffon, edged in white lace.

TURQUOISE AND WHITE

All wore toning whimsies of organza roses and veiling and carried white carnations tipped in turquoise.

Howie Bateman, Vancouver, was best man and ushering guests were Jimmy Peck, the bride's brother and Ian Stewart.

Harry Downard proposed the toast to the bride's happiness at a reception held in Holyrood House. Golden chrysanthemums and yellow candles decorated the tables. Johanna Hill roses flanked the three-tier wedding cake on the head table.

For her going-away outfit the bride chose a turquoise worsted wool suit, black patent accessories and black velvet hat with white organza-brim. Corsage was of white roses.

Clubwomen's News

Speaker—Colin Graham, curator of the Greater Victoria Art Gallery, was guest speaker when the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club held a dinner meeting in the War Amputations Hall. His subject was "Women in Art". Miss E. L. Forbes was given a standing ovation by fellow members for her successful nomination as candidate in the forthcoming provincial election. Plans were discussed for Business Women's Week, to be held October 20-25.

Plan Bazaar—Twenty-four members who attended the Catholic Women's League of Our Lady of the Rosary Parish first meeting of the season discussed plans for the fall bazaar. It will be held in the new parish hall which is expected to be completed in mid-November.

Official Visit—Mrs. Mayme R. Edwards, supreme worthy high priestess of the Order of the White Shrine of Jerusalem, paid an official visit to the Victoria Shrine recently. Members from Nanaimo, Courtenay, Vancouver and New Westminster attended and assisted in the Order's work. Prior to the meeting in the K of P Hall, Mrs. Edwards, a worthy high priestess of the local shrine, presided at a dinner in the Dominion Hotel.

Club Converts Old Mansion And Hosts an Antique Fair

Antiques displayed in a gracious old Vancouver mansion will be focal point of interest to many members of the University Women's Club of Victoria next week.

On Monday evening the Hycroft Antique Fair will be opened by the lieutenant-governor and Mrs. G. R. Parkes. This will also mark the formal opening of Hycroft as the new club headquarters for the University Women's Club of Vancouver.

VICTORIA GUEST

Also attending the official opening will be Mrs. J. L. Andrews, president of the University Women's Club of Victoria. Later in the week Mrs. A. H. Gunning, Mrs. J. J. O'Riley, Mrs. F. M. P. Warren, Mrs. A. B. Sanderson, Miss Margaret Crummy and Mrs. J. R. Stone will be among members of the Victoria club who will be visiting Hycroft.

Hycroft was built in the years 1912-14 by the late Senator A. D. McRae, a lumber magnate and politician, who played a large role in the development of the West.

In 1942 he donated the estate to the federal government and in 1946 it became an annex for Shaughnessy Hospital. No longer needed as such by 1960, it was closed and put on the market.

ANSWER TO DREAM

The spacious gardens with walks between the sequoia trees and the gracious mansion itself with its large ballroom, dining room and many sitting rooms was the answer to a long-held dream of the University Women's Club of Vancouver.

In the spring of 1962 the club purchased Hycroft. Having been in disuse for several years there was work to be done—committees were formed and soon paint brightened darkened walls and the woodwork took on a new lustre. A year later—May, 1963, Hycroft opened.

Oldsters Enjoy Afternoon Afloat

There were 250 young-hearted oldsters at the party held by the Retired Employees' Association, Canadian Pacific Services, Tuesday afternoon. Appropriately enough, the affair, the annual Ladies' Day tea, was staged in the dining room of the St. Marguerite.

Guests were greeted by E. D. Campbell, president; Mrs. Campbell, Don McKinnon, vice-president, and Mrs. McKinnon as they mounted the gangplank. Also on hand to greet the pensioners and their wives were Capt. S. C. MacGillivray, master of the Marguerite, and Harry Tyson, superintendent of the CP's British Columbia Coastal Service.

Lavender Brown, now in his 80's and only remaining charter member, was among those who enjoyed the gay afternoon. Association was formed in 1943.

In addition to afternoon tea, guests were treated to a program by the Twilight Singers, led by Mrs. Jennie Boyd Hudson. In addition to several songs, there were musical numbers, monologues, comedy skits and other items.

One of the most surprised guests was Clifford Kennedy.

Teen-Agers! Take Time Out to Learn 'Ins' and 'Outs'

You'll be way ahead of your class now you are back to school providing you take time out to see if your beauty and fashion "I.Q." add up. Start by learning what's "in" for fall and winter and what's "out" by reading the newspapers and magazines and visiting your favorite department stores.

"Experience," advises an internationally-famed beauty authority, "is an excellent teacher, but you're really with it when you carefully study everything that's new and listen to those who are really in on the know."

'RIGHT' FOR YOU

After you have absorbed the excitement of what will be "right" this season, decide what is best and most flattering for you.

For instance, "out" are the big teased coiffures and "in" is neatly brushed, shiny, natural look in hair styling. "Out" are heavy made-up eyes of last year and "in" are eyes that look natural and lovely. The fall eye look is accomplished by knowing how to use the proper make-up cleverly. This takes a bit of experimentation and with practice you will find it wonderfully easy.

Pale, almost white looking lips are "out." "In" lipstick shades are soft, beautifully alive pastels and light, dazzling reds. Definitely "out" are excess frills and flounces in costumes and "in" is the sleek, soft, sportive look.

Experiment with new lip-lines, eyebrow applications and new color tones in your make-up. Learn how to achieve wonderful face flattery with make-up preparations which keep your nose from shining but do not change color nor build up on your skin. It is also important for you to know that one basic make-up and one hair style are not appropriate for every occasion. Learn how to deftly manage two or three flattering hair-dos and how to create make-up "looks" to go with them.

You Can Now Duplicate Cleopatra's Long Lashes

By PENNY SAVER

Here's good news for the gal who's longed to be able to flap beguilingly long lashes but has always been stuck with ones of mediocre length. Now you can grow lashes with less speed than it took Jack to cultivate his lusty beanstalk!

The secret lies in a new mascara that made it's appearance on the market this summer. Synthetic fibres have been added to the mascara so that every time you apply eye makeup you add extra length. For evening wear, it's recommended that you use three applications while day glamor is assured with two sessions.

New mascara comes in brown, black and navy and sells at $3. Refills are obtainable for $1.75.

When bedtime comes and you try to remove your mascara be sure to use oil that's marketed for this purpose and also doubles as a magic-working lubricant for the tender skin around the eyes. It's well worth the $1.25 price tag on the one-ounce bottle.

Silk is one of the most potent weapons milady can use when it comes to care for her skin.

Revolutionary liquid makeup brought out by the same manufacturer relies on powdered silk to lift it from the commonplace. The result is that your skin glows with life without having to support extra weight of old-time preparations. Wonderful for dry or normal skins, it's easily applied with the fingertips. Skin glamor is yours for $2 only.

For those with oily skin, the same firm has a boon of a liquid makeup that will never cake, no matter how busy your day, and will never turn that harsh orange shade that's the bane of women with oily skin.

A real penny-hoarder is this manufacturer's lipstick and lip-liner that comes in a veritable rainbow of colors and is a new long length—well over three inches. It's a "steal" at $1.75 and refills can be bought for $1.25.

Presently on order and coming soon is the latest shade lipstick to break the fashion barrier this fall. It's boutique red. Watch for it—you'll love it!

If this is your day to concentrate on making the most of your cosmetic allies, phone Penny, 382-3131. She'd love to share the good news with you.

Red and White Dahlias Set Decor for Recent Wedding

Baskets of red and white dahlias set the decor in St. Sharon Hardy, sister of the Mark's Anglican Church for the recent wedding of Pamela Rippon to William Herbert Hardy.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Rippon, 3118 Irma Street, and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hardy, 3820 Saul Street. Canon Robert Willis officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gownned in slipper-length lace featuring long sleeves, scalloped neckline and large bow on back of gown. Red roses and white carnations were in her bouquet. The veil of fine net misted from a crown of pearls.

Maid of honor, Miss Loretta

Storrs, and bridesmaid, Miss Sharon Hardy, sister of the groom, wore gowns of pale pink and blue brocade, respectively. Both wore white accessories and carried white carnations.

Cal Bateman was best man. Ushering guests to pews marked with yellow roses were Don Hagel, John Rippon and Ken Hardy.

Horace Rumsby proposed a toast to the bride's happiness at a reception in Norway House. A three-tiered wedding cake centered the bride's table. Mixed flower arrangements decorated the guest tables.

For travelling to Washington, the bride wore a beige suit with turquoise hat, gloves, and necklace, brown accessories and yellow rose corsage.

Upon return, the couple will make their home at 5734 Duke Road.

Out-of-town guests who attended the wedding were Mr. James H. Rippon, Vancouver, grandfather of the bride; Mrs. Doris Williams, aunt of the groom, and Mr. S. W. Millar, both of Calgary.

DEAR ABBY ...

Be MORE Careful!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I met a man at work and liked him right away. I knew that he was married, but we saw each other anyway because he said his wife didn't care if he went around with other women. I guess it must be true because he never has to rush home, and he can get away to see me as much as he wants to. I am divorced. I don't want any trouble, Abby, so I told him I wasn't going to go on seeing him unless he brought me a note from his wife saying she didn't care. If she will do this, I'll go on seeing him—otherwise, I won't. He says he'll put her on the phone, but he won't ask her to sign anything. What do you think, Abby? I am 44 years old and I don't want a shot in the head.

CAREFUL.

DEAR CAREFUL: Note or no note, you're in the wrong game, with the wrong guy, at the wrong time. You've admitted it—now act on your confession.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I wanted to will our bodies to a medical college. When we wrote telling them about it, they wrote back and told us we would have to pay the shipping charges. We wrote back asking them how much it would cost. They wrote and said they didn't know, but when the time came they'd take it out of our estates. Wouldn't you think if they wanted our bodies they would be glad to pay the shipping charges? Or at least tell us how much it will cost?

MRS. C.

DEAR MRS. C.: More information is needed here. Send me your full name and address and the name of the medical college to which you wrote.

DEAR ABBY: I have been invited to a number of weddings this summer, and my problem is I never know what to say when I go through the receiving line. I have a friend who always says something funny when he shakes hands with the parents of the bride, like "Well, you aren't losing a daughter, you're gaining a bathroom!" Is this appropriate or shouldn't something a little more serious be said?

STUMPED FOR WORDS. DEAR STUMPED: The parents of the bride and groom, and the groom, should be congratulated—never the bride. She is wished a lifetime of happiness, and the jokes are saved for later.

Confidential to MRS. WIFE: You are mountain-climbing over molehills. Be grateful that you still have a husband who always leaves his shoes in the living room.

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Hate to write letters? Send one dollar to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif., for Abby's new booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Royalty Seen In Victoria

Queen Elizabeth, Mrs. Georges Vanier and Queen Victoria were flanked by Royal Canadian Mounted Police in the Hudson's Bay Douglas Room Tuesday afternoon.

These royal figures, along with prominent dignitaries, are life-like dolls created by Mrs. Alec Douglas. Set on the stage against a background of birdcages filled with pastel roses they made an impressive picture for the many guests who attended the coffee and tea party sponsored by the Royal Roads Chapter of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.

Success marked the affair and proceeds amounting to $165 will go towards the chapter's educational and welfare projects.

General convenor, Mrs. Charles Riach was assisted by Mrs. J. C. F. Blowey, Mrs. T. Kowalchuk, Mrs. David Low, Mrs. Basil Shaw, Mrs. Margaret Barker, Mrs. B. Zabel, Mrs. R. Lejeune and Miss Helen Rattray. Mrs. Helen Anderson and Mrs. M. Gardiner were in charge of tickets.

Get the Point—Bits of elegance have been added to the dress. The dress and fur-collared cape are done in petit point fabric, a delicate and intricate embroidered fabric, manufactured in Vienna, Austria.

Drugs Often Potentially Poisonous

Aspirin causes more deaths than any other potentially poisonous substance.

This was revealed by Mrs. Ethel W. Purdy, who spoke on the Poison Control Centre at recent meeting of the Alumnae Association of the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Mrs. Purdy, assistant pharmacist at the hospital, said that with 70,000 new products and 18,000 cosmetics, all potentially poisonous, coming onto the market each year, treatment and antidotes for poisonings are no longer simple.

Mrs. Purdy said that the largest number of poisonings occurred in the 18-month to three-year-old age group. Commonest hazards to children are adult cough medicines, iron tablets, bleaches, pesticides and disinfectants.

She stressed that it is up to the individual home to keep potentially poisonous materials well out of reach of children. "A high shelf is not adequate," she said.

Miss Muriel Thompson, director of nursing at the hospital, told members of the changes since opening of the new Royal wing.

Plans were made for a superfluity sale to be held in mid-October.

Crossley-Smith Vows Heard at Langford

The groom's aunt, Mrs. Adeline Heck, came from Seattle and was soloist at the wedding in Our Lady of the Rosary Church at Langford that united Barbara Joan Smith and Harold Raphael Crossley.

Fall flowers decorated the church for the afternoon ceremony. Fr. W. J. O'Brien officiated.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Smith, 3298 Tennyson Avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley T. Crossley, 751 Meaford Road.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father. Her gown, made by her sister, Mrs. Bert Baker, was floor length and fashioned on empire lines.

Soft pleats enhanced the centre back of the flared skirt that swept back to a chapel train. Bodice was styled with a sweetheart neckline and sleeves ending in rly points. A rhinestone tiara held the fingertip veil. Streamers of roses edged her bouquet which was made of white carnations and centred with a red rose.

Mrs. Baker was matron of honor for her sister in a gown of green brocade. Bridesmaids, the Misses Edith and Alice Smith, chose similar gowns in blue and turquoise while matching gowns in yellow and pink respectively were worn by Miss Barbara Crossley and Mary Rutherford. They carried white carnation bouquets, trimmed with white ribbons.

Lionel Crossley was best man for his brother and ushering guests were Larry Crossley, Geoffrey Potter, Gerald Danhauer and Mr. Baker.

Canon R. W. Willis and Lionel Crossley proposed toasts at the reception which followed in the home of the bride's parents. White bells set decor.

Travel to Salt Lake City

Upon their return from Salt Lake City, Utah, Mr. and Mrs. David Joseph Acton will make their home at 808 Langham Court. The bride is the former Margaret Kerr McLellan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McLellan of Prince George. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Wann of Dublin, Ireland.

The couple were recently married in Metropolitan United Church with Dr. F. E. H. James officiating, assisted by Mr. G. McLaren, North Vancouver.

Decor was set with white gladioli, flanked by baskets of pastel gladioli. Soloist Mrs. Marjorie Sturgeon sang "O Father, All Creating."

Gowned in white taffeta fashioned with bateau neckline and bell skirt slightly on train, the bride entered the church on the arm of her father. A waist-length veil misted from a pearl and crystal coronet. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and stephanotis.

Maid of honor, Miss Jamesina McLellan, sister of the bride wore a gown of Wedgewood blue peau de sole with headpiece and shoes en tone. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations.

Don Wilkinson was best man and ushers were Stan Jackson and Bert Coles.

White and red gladioli decorated Holyrood House for a reception. The three-tier wedding cake centering the bride's table was topped with red rosebuds and flanked by vases of red roses. Mr. Ivan Armstrong, Edmonton, proposed the toast.

For travelling, the bride wore a rose wool suit with white silk shantung blouse, white feather hat, black accessories and squirrel stole.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

Follow These Directions To Prevent Ripping Seam

"Dear Eunice Farmer: "When making raglan sleeves without a gusset, how can I prevent the under-arm seam from ripping? I have clipped the seams according to pattern instructions, but the clipping seems to be causing the ripping." Mrs. W.E.S.

Dear Mrs. W.E.S.:

The correct way to finish the curved under-arm seam where there is no gusset is as follows:

1. Stitch the under-arm area of about four inches twice for reinforcement.

2. Clip the under-arm curve about every half inch; the clips must be made to within a thread or two of the stitching line.

3. Place this seam on the edge of a pressing board and press the seam open. The clipping, if properly done, will allow the seam to lie flat. Baste a small piece of hem tape over the clipped seam. Last, turn the garment to the right side and machine stitch each side of the seam line, as close as possible to the seam. This area is directly at the under-arm and will not show very high, and will almost prevent any tearing and still give you the benefit of the added ease achieved by clipping your seam.

Roses and Ivy Decorate Church

Soft candlelight, pink roses and ivy formed the setting in St. Chad's Church for the recent wedding of Susan Elizabeth Arnold to Kevin James Rooney.

Parents of the couple are Lt. Cndr. and Mrs. J. L. D. Arnold, 901 Island Road, and Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Rooney, 4435 Shelbourne Avenue. Rev. H. G. Walker officiated.

During the signing of the register, the congregation sang "Praise My Soul" with Peter Hinehill at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the petite bride was gownned in slipper length white sculptured satin styled with bateau neckline, lily point sleeves and slightly flared skirt. Fingertip silk illusion net veil misted from a self fabric flower. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and ivy.

Maid of honor, Miss Anne Machan, and bridesmaids,

Misses Susie Foster and Sue Lort wore identical gowns of French blue peau de sole with satin shoes en tone. They carried colonial bouquets of shasta daisies and wore a single chrysanthemum in their hair.

Lawrence Rooney, brother of the groom, was best man. Jim Koziak and Brad Mitchell were ushers.

Dr. Chris Moore proposed the toast at a reception in the home of the bride's parents. The lace-covered table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake, flanked by crystal vases of red Delight roses.

For travelling, the bride chose a two-piece French knit suit in dusty roses with black accessories, and white gardenia corsage.

The couple will make their home in Vancouver.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. Brad Mitchell, Vancouver; Mr. Jim Koziak, Calgary; and Mrs. Bente Joergensen, North Vancouver.

Telegrams were received from the bride's grandfather and aunt in Harrogate, England; her godmother in Liverpool, England; Bessie Mackenzie, Glasgow, Scotland; Dr. and Mrs. Jolly of Oradell, N.J., and the groom's fellow employees in Yellowknife, N.W.T.

'Power Policy Failure Cause Of Election'

"If Premier Bennett is in political heaven and all's right with B.C., why is he calling an election now?"

That's what a former deputy premier of Saskatchewan, J. H. Sturdy wants to know.

He told an election campaign meeting Tuesday night the premier wants the election out of the way before the failure of his power policy becomes obvious.

Mr. Sturdy was speaking in support of Esquimalt NDP candidate Geoffrey Mitchell at a meeting in View Royal Community Hall.

Said Mr. Sturdy: "If financiers are as keen on B.C. as Premier Bennett says they are, why don't we hear of them buying B.C. bonds?"

Mr. Mitchell said the premier called this election less than three weeks after saying there wouldn't be one this year.

ABOUT FACE

"He fought the last election on the issue of private versus public date for private power. Then he turned around and took over B.C. Electric," said Mr. Mitchell.

One thing about the NDP: It's consistent, claimed Mr. Mitchell.

He then outlined its platform:

- A redistribution of seats so that the province will be represented in the legislature on the basis of population. At present it takes 30,000 voters in Saanich to elect one MLA while only 3,000 elect a member from Columbia.

- Keeping the voters' list up to date at all times.

- A restriction on the amount of money a candidate may spend in an election "to prevent brainwashing."

- A Hansard record of parliamentary debates.

- Creation of an "Ombudsman" who would investigate complaints from citizens about government bureaucracy and abuses of power.

- Legislation to enable private citizens to sue the government.

- An economic development plan and fund to build prosperity for B.C. rather than allow profits to be made by big private companies.

- A comprehensive auto accident insurance scheme to assume responsibility for anyone injured in highway accidents.

NO NEGLECT

Mr. Sturdy dealt with the other main plan in the NDP program — a comprehensive medicare system. He reviewed the history of increasing medical coverage given by the CCF-NDP government in Saskatchewan.

He said it originally covered old persons and was gradually extended until the 1960 medicare plan ensured that "no one in that province need neglect their health because they don't have the money for medical or hospital bills."

Legion to Meet

First fall meeting of Esquimalt Legion branch 172 will be held tonight at 8 in the main hall of the club building on Admirals Road.

Pensioners Meet

Group 55 of the Old Age Pensioners Organization will meet in St. Mark's church hall on Friday at 2 p.m.

Vic U Wants No Zany Stunts No Hep Parties

Victoria University students Tuesday were urged to be spirited without "wild parties and crazy stunts" that can ruin the fledgling institution's reputation.

Speaker was university chancellor Judge Joseph B. Clearhue, who welcomed the 1963-64 freshman class in a mass meeting at Gordon Head gymnasium.

As a new university, "U Vic's future depends on what we make it," said the judge, dubbing the new institution with its first nickname.

The university consists of the board of governors, the senate, the faculty "and especially you, the students, who can make or break our reputation."

PROPRIETY URGED

"Remember, a lot of wild parties and crazy stunts and foolish escapades can ruin it," he told the assembly.

He suggested that first-year students, the graduating class of 1967, would be historic because they would be the first graduates to have taken their degrees from the University of Victoria, coinciding with the Canadian centenary.

"You will be famous because you will graduate and receive your degrees on the anniversary of the founding of Canada and the British North America Act."

"There will be great celebration in Canada. The granting of your degrees that year will be one of the greatest events of Greater Victoria in the centennial year... So make sure all of you get degrees," the chancellor said.

Judge Clearhue, alumnus of the first Victoria College class in 1902, said today's student could contribute to the Canadian centenary by making suggestion to the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism.

The commission will be sitting here within the next two years, he said.

"It would be a great thing if the French and English races were properly welded together," he said.

"You are the one who must weld Canada together. You will be asked to make suggestions to this commission. Think about it."

But getting a short name for the university will be one of the first things students must think about, he said. That and writing a new yell and a university song book "with some good zip, go and melody in it," the judge suggested.

Acting president Dr. W. H. Hickman wished the class "happy, hardworking and profitable days in one another's company," and hinted that their first important examinations are only 11 weeks off.

Acting registrar R. R. Jeffels noted the freshman class has already proven itself to have "resourcefulness, stamina and courage" by surviving the rigors of registration.

Attending university, he said, is one of the most exciting experiences, where students may test ideas and have their own ideas tested.

"May you find good friends, your heart's desire," Mr. Jeffels said.

Former City Man Drowned Near Prince George

A former Victorian, Raymond Armand Pilon, drowned Sunday near Prince George. Mr. Pilon was foreman of Arrow Radiators in Prince George, where he moved 11 years ago.

He was boating on a lake in the area when the fatal accident occurred.

The funeral will be held Friday in Sands Chapel, Victoria.

Mr. Pilon, 34, was educated at Oak Bay High School.

He is survived by the widow Margaret and children Garry, Grant and Guy; parents Mr. and Mrs. A. Pilon of Victoria; brothers R. Pilon of Vancouver and Leonard of Nanaimo; sisters Mrs. Martin (Cecile) Funk, Vancouver; Mrs. Robert (Juliette) Armstrong, Mrs. Ray (Lillian) Mattland, both of Victoria; Mrs. Robert (Venice) Bryden of Vancouver.

Lecture Series Led By U of V Faculty

University of Victoria faculty this season will form 50 per cent of the speakers in a 10-part University Extension Association lecture series opening Sept. 30.

Subjects to be discussed will cover education, classics, philosophy, psychology, political science, zoology and history.

Usually most of the lecturers come from University of B.C. to take part in the program which extends to the latter part of March. This year there are four UBC professors and one from University of Washington, in addition to the five from U Vic.

Acting Dean R. T. Wallace, of the faculty of arts and science, will be first speaker, dealing with a recent trip abroad by contrasting higher education here and in Great Britain.

Meetings will be held in the university auditorium, Lansdowne campus, at 8:30 p.m. Memberships at $2 each are available there, at the Public Library or Eaton's box office. A collection will be asked from non-members.

The remaining speakers and subjects are:

Oct. 14, Professors A. W. Wainman and Cyril Bryner, Slavonic studies department, University of B.C. Some recent impressions from a rarely visited Communist country — Bulgaria (panel discussion);

Nov. 4, Prof. Barnett Savery, head, philosophy department, UBC. Some philosophic reflections for today's world; Nov. 18, Prof. John D. Peter, English department, U. of Victoria, The psychology of apartheid;

Dec. 2, Prof. Sydney G. Pettit, head, history department, U. of Victoria, William Windham (1750-1810) — a scholar among politicians;

Adults Give Up Jobs to Study On Full-Time Basis at Night

Some of the 40 adults registered for academic night school have quit their jobs in order to complete junior matriculation over the next 10 months.

This fact was pointed out today by assistant adult education director Alan Baley to underline the enthusiasm of the men and women who started back to school Monday, some after a lapse of up to 10 years.

Classes at Victoria High School from 4 to 10 p.m. are the first in a full-time academic program offered in the evening.

Only one class was anticipated, but two have been set up to handle the enrolment, which is expected to swell by a few more persons this week.

Although many have quit their marginal jobs, others are holding onto part-time work during the term. They pay $200 tuition fee to attend.

To facilitate the program various forms of teaching machine will be used, to provide small, progressive teaching steps rather than confronting students with large masses of information. Their use is limited to non-interpretive situations such as English grammar.

The result is better comprehension by the student and enables the teacher to devote more energy to interpretive work.

Adults may also take individual high school courses or enroll in the popular evening vocational classes. Total registration for academic subjects so far is 625, and for the entire division is more than 3,000, or 25 per cent higher than last year.

The latter courses begin Oct. 7.

Hydrofoil To Seattle In 1½ Hours

Despite the Flying Fish failure, another U.S. company plans to operate a hydrofoil service between Seattle and Victoria starting next spring.

A report from New York Monday said William I. Neidermair, former research head for the U.S. maritime administration, announced plans for the run.

He is president of Northwest Hydrofoil Lines Inc., which intends to operate a 40-ton, 65-foot-long hydrofoil capable of carrying 75 passengers. Named HS Victoria, it is expected to reduce the present 4½-hour voyage to 1½ hours.

Experiments with the first commercial hydrofoil in these waters, Flying Fish, resulted in abandonment of a similar plan two years ago because of constant trouble with log "deadheads" encountered in the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Dugie, Doris and Len ... the walk-right-in sound.

ORANGE BLOSSOM SPECIAL

Old Violin Groans Into Secret

A violin nearly 10 times as old as the man who wields it puffs and rattles under his fingers just like the train it is supposed to represent.

The Jubilation Singers don't just sing. Len, the leader of the group, sings most of the time. He also plays the six-string guitar, the 12-string guitar, the five-string banjo, the fiddle — and the mandolin, except I haven't got one.

With him are Doris Lavole, who sings but doesn't play anything, and Dugie Gills, who plays the bass, the guitar and the banjo, "but I don't sing — I don't know how."

SMOOTH, FAST Their act is smooth, fast and has lots of walk-right-in sound, and although they don't like the phrase, much of its appeal comes from the hot-gospel overtones.

Doris does some singles; she has a boisterous, bluesy voice backed up well by the bass. Len and Dugie are both Nova Scotians, and some of their songs are from the east coast.

Most of their songs are in the medium-well-known range, although they have plans to start concentrating more on grass-roots, ethnic stuff.

Len's violin playing, and his swift guitar picking (on a selection called I Wanted to Wear Mother's Girdle. But I Didn't Have the Guts) will probably be for most people the highlights of the three-set show.

Fitness Accolade To Pacific Sailors

Sailors of the Pacific Command are pretty pleased with themselves these days — they apparently are in better shape than their Atlantic counterparts.

And navy personnel in the 19-29 age group on this coast fared better in physical fitness tests than those in the 30-39 age group, while the opposite was true in the Atlantic Command.

Total of 2.5 per cent of those in the 30-39 age group on this coast failed the tests while the figure for the 19-29 group was 2.1 per cent.

The older group on the east coast had a 3.9 per cent failure rate, and the younger group 5.5 per cent.

The physical fitness program is designed to replace some of the exercise made unnecessary by the increasingly technological structure of today's navy.

A compressed air gun built in Britain is said capable of driving up to 30 nails 2½ inches long in one minute.

UN Puts Viet Nam On Agenda

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United Nations' powerful steering committee recommended today that the question of treatment of Buddhists in South Viet Nam be placed before the current session of the General Assembly.

The 21-nation committee took the action after hearing Ceylonese and Indonesian delegates declare that the situation in South Viet Nam has become a matter of international concern.

Before it acted the committee got bogged down in a procedural argument over whether it should hear the delegate from South Viet Nam, which has a status.

Assembly President Carlos Sosa-Rodriguez, after listening to various views, decided that the consensus was against granting the floor to the Viet Nam representative.

S.A. Issue Raised Again

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—A special United Nations committee asked the General Assembly and the Security Council today to consider expelling South Africa at once from the world organization for its policy of rigid racial segregation.

It also called on UN members to carry out penalties against South Africa suggested by the assembly last year. These include an arms embargo, a petroleum embargo and an end to foreign investment in South Africa.

The 11-nation special committee of Asian, African and Latin American nations was established last year to review South Africa's racial policies.

Meanwhile Prime Minister Pearson of Canada worked on the final drafts of the speech he will deliver to the General Assembly Thursday.

Informants said Pearson is not expected to make any dramatic statement, but that he will make an appeal for a further slackening of East-West tensions in light of the nuclear test ban.

End of U.N. 'Blessing'

SOMERSET STRAND (AP)—South African Foreign Minister Eric Louw said today dissolution of the United Nations "would be a blessing for South Africa and certain other countries." He did not specify which others.

Louw told the ruling National party's Cape congress, however, it was not impossible for the United Nations to cease to exist. He said any decision on South Africa's membership in the United Nations would depend on the circumstances applying at the time.

There has been speculation in South Africa that if the UN General Assembly acted strongly against South Africa's apartheid (racial segregation) policies the government might decide to quit rather than face the possibility of expulsion.

Louw said it would be a blow to the United States if the United Nations ceased to exist because "she used this body as an instrument in her foreign policy."

Critic of Regime Gunned Down

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—A prominent political prisoner was seriously wounded by police gun fire today while trying to escape from custody, press reports said.

Dennis Brutus, 38-year-old Mulatto who is president of the South African Non-Racial Committee for Olympic Sports was shot twice in the stomach after a four-block chase ending across from Johannesburg magistrate court.

Oranges Hurled

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (Reuters)—Students at Copenhagen University hurled oranges across their canteen Tuesday night in protest against being served South African fruit. The students are boycotting South African goods because of segregation policies.

DIONNE QUINTS TELL STORY:

'Drenched in Sense of Sin Since Hour of Our Birth'

NEW YORK (CP)—The Dionne quintuplets say they moved into "the saddest home we ever knew" when they were reunited with their parents and brothers and sisters after seven years in the shelter of a nursery.

"If love begets love, guilt begets guilt," the four surviving quintuplets—Annette, Yvonne, Marie and Cecile—say in their life story, as told to James Bough in the current issue of McCall's magazine.

"The air of the big house was thick with it. Mom and dad behaved toward each other as though they had been partners in some unspoken crime in bringing us into the world. We were drenched with a sense of having sinned from the hour of our birth."

The "big house" was a 10-bedroom home Oliva Dionne built at Callander, Ont., to house his family of 11 after the quintuplets were restored to his care in 1941.

The children, made wards of the Ontario government soon after their birth in 1934 to prevent them from being exploited, spent their first seven years in a government-built and government-supervised nursery on the family farm at Callander. They were cared for by a corps of nurses, teachers and guards superintended by Dr. Allan Dafoe, the country doctor who had delivered them.

MEMORIES UNPLEASANT

They describe these early years as happy and carefree, but recall few pleasant memories of their life after they returned to the family.

"Dad wanted us, and the quintuplet funds in his own exclusive custody," the sisters said. "In the beginning he needed money for the sake of the other children. But afterward, his fortunes improved... it made no difference. By then, it was a matter of self-esteem that he should win. We were such a prize."

"We were transferred into the big house like a conquered army," they recall, "one group of five, huddling together as if for protection against the other six brothers and sisters."

"Other members of the family went out of their way to say wounding things about us, how they had all been happier before we came into their lives..."

"The thought was drummed into us that the discord in which the family lived much of the time was our doing."

"All the children worked in theory, but in practice most of the chores seemed to fall on us..."

"We had to scrub floors and clean bathrooms, every item of plumbing in them. We milked the cows and fed the chickens, enjoying the hours outdoors for the most part, because it was a joy to escape from close supervision."

"In the spring, we helped shear the three or four sheep kept in a field behind the house."

The girls say the secret of the illness of their sister Emilie, who died after an attack of epilepsy in 1954, was carefully guarded because "the family considered her illness a shameful thing."

The quint's recollection of an unhappy home life recalls controversy that flared in 1955 when none of the girls, then living in Montreal, went home for Christmas.

The father said then that his daughters were drifting away from the family, so much so that they had been treating their brothers and sisters "almost with contempt." He and Mrs. Dionne blamed unnamed outside intruders for the separation.

Whatever trouble there was seemed to have been smoothed over when three of the girls went home for New Year's.

Papa Dionne

'Upset' by Story

TORONTO (UPI)—Olivia Dionne, father of the Dionne quintuplets, was reported "very upset" today over a story written by his daughters charging their childhood was unhappy because of their parents.

Columbia Power 'First'

VANCOUVER (CP)—E. David Fulton said today power could be available to British Columbia immediately after ratification of the international Columbia River treaty with the United States.

The Progressive Conservative leader said when Premier Bennett says that Peace power would be available before Columbia power he is misleading the people.

At a breakfast meeting and a press conference he said the United States has already stated it would provide Canada with an equivalent of one-third of its downstream entitlement under the treaty immediately after ratification.

This would mean that between 300,000 and 400,000 kilowatts would be available at Blaine, Wash., 30 miles south of Vancouver, immediately after ratification.

The treaty has been ratified by the U.S. but not by Canada.

DROP PEACE

Mr. Fulton was commenting on his announcement at Prince George that a Progressive Conservative government would stop work on the Peace River and make an immediate start on the Columbia.

He said Premier Bennett has said that the Peace must be built because it could produce power by 1968 and Columbia power would not be available by then.

But by not selling B.C.'s downstream benefits, as planned by Mr. Bennett, B.C. could have immediate power from the Columbia, Mr. Fulton said.

U.K. Protests 'Uncivilized Behavior'

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain has warned Indonesia to stop such "uncivilized behavior" as the burning of the British Embassy in Jakarta, a Foreign Office spokesman said today.

Foreign Secretary Lord Home today called Indonesian ambassador Burhanudin Mohamed Diah to the Foreign Office to issue the warning.

Home told him to ask Indonesia to take measures "immediately" to protect the British ambassador and British lives and property in Indonesia, the spokesman said.

Home told Diah the news from Jakarta that the British embassy had been attacked for the second time and set on fire was viewed with "strong displeasure" by the British government, the spokesman added.

JFK to Meet Top Negroes On Crisis

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—President Kennedy today arranged a meeting in Washington Thursday with seven Negro leaders to discuss the tense racial situation in Birmingham following the bombing of a church which killed four girls.

The conference was requested by Negro leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. of Atlanta.

Hundreds of saddened Negroes gathered this afternoon for the funeral of three of the girls.

King's office in Atlanta said those who would attend the White House meeting would include, in addition to King, the Revs. Fred Shuttlesworth, Ralph D. Abernathy and J. L. Ware; A. G. Gaston, Birmingham Negro businessman; Dr. Lucius Pitts, president of Alabama State College and Bishop H. I. Murchison of Birmingham.

Five Negroes returned quietly to classes today in three newly-integrated schools in the city.

Douglas May Pull Down House On Arms Issue

OTTAWA—New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas has arrived home from a tour of Europe convinced Canada's acquisition of nuclear weapons will add nothing to Western defenses—and he threatens to bring down the minority Liberal government on the issue.

He will insist on examination by parliament of the nuclear agreement signed by the government with the United States, he said in a press conference today.

"The government has no right to do otherwise on such an important matter as this. We are prepared to stop the agreement going through whatever that may mean."

His "whatever that may mean" comment was taken to mean the NDP is prepared even to defeat the government and force another federal election on the issue.

No cabinet, he said, was en-

'Kill the English' Thousands Chant

(Times News Services)

JAKARTA—Indonesia troops were called out in an apparent bid to restore order late today after violent anti-British rioting in which Britain's embassy was wrecked and set ablaze.

British ambassador Howard P. Jones told reporters he had learned the army's Jakarta garrison had been told to take over control of the capital and restore order as soon as possible.

The garrison's troops began patrolling streets through which thousands of demonstrators rampaged screaming "kill the English."

The violence saw stones hurled at the British ambassador and men and women members of his staff.

The frenzied mobs smashed British homes and outside the blazing three-story glass and concrete embassy building they piled up nine embassy cars and set them on fire, together with furniture dragged from the building.

Late in the day about 50 Britons rescued from the rioters were under close guard at police headquarters. Two men and one young woman suffered minor injuries, but no British or white foreigner was reported seriously hurt.

Earlier, as the embassy burned, the crowd pressed close to a group of 22 British men and women huddled near the wall and began hurling stones, bottles and bricks. A dozen police armed with fixed bayonets and sub-machine guns tried to hold them back.

Two stones hit British Ambassador Andrew Gilchrist as he stood with folded arms.

The British Cricket Club, set up 119 years ago, was destroyed and the pitch dug up.

A group of British children, including two of Ambassador Gilchrist's, arrived by air in Singapore tonight on their way to London.

More than a score of rioters were injured, mostly through their own actions. A hard core of several hundred, which moved on the embassy in trucks quickly swelled to more than 10,000. Thousands of others flocked to the fringes to watch.

The United Jack was ripped from its staff, torn and burned.

Perrault Claim Draws Denials

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—There is no basis for suggestions that Canada is attempting to negotiate out of the proposed "High Arrow" dam part of the Canada-U.S. Columbia River treaty, informed sources said here today.

"That is a figment of someone's imagination," the sources declared in comment on the claim by B.C. Liberal Leader Ray Perrault. He had stated that Ottawa Liberals wanted to postpone the High Arrow dam near Murphy Creek.

Mr. Perrault has made this claim a major part of his campaign in the Sept. 30 B.C. election race. He has made the statement at both Naksup and Nelson, in interior B.C.

The High Arrow dam was an integral part of the treaty, spokesmen said, and could not be left out of the over-all development without major amendment to the treaty. In current negotiations Canada is seeking "modifications and clarifications" to the treaty, but with no major changes.

Denial of Mr. Perrault's campaign declaration is in keeping with a July statement of Prime Minister Pearson that the physical plan of Columbia development contemplated by the treaty is to be carried out, ing to western security by acquiring nuclear weapons.

Such action, in fact, was making it more difficult to stop the spread of nuclear weapons to other nations, he declared.

Mr. Douglas disagreed with suggestions that the issue already had been voted on in parliament on the non-confidence motion which criticized the government for moving to get nuclear warheads.

That was a vote on a principle, Mr. Douglas maintained, but this time it would be on an actual treaty committing the government to a specific course of action which had not been debated.

On other issues, however, Mr. Douglas said his party was prepared to give the government "reasonable" support in parliament.

China cast the lone negative vote in the Sept. 30.

China Seat Debate Set

The vote on the China question was 12 to 1 with eight abstentions. Nationalist China cast the lone negative

Arthur Mayse

With October near and the human nesting urge climbing toward the second of its semi-annual peaks, we could do worse than pay a return call on Oak Bay realtor Don Whyte.

Last week, Mr. Whyte concentrated on pitfalls into which the family with a house to sell can stumble. Today, he warns against the buyers' hazard known in his trade as "Uncle Charley."

This fourth party to many an otherwise clearcut transaction is the character who climbs out of the car along with the young couple shopping for their first house.

Uncle Charley may switch genders and become Aunt Charlotte. He can be one well-meaning parent or four. But whether this adviser takes the form of relative or family friend, Uncle Charley can queer a deal quicker than shingles dropping off the roof.

His big trouble is that he can't see a house as suitable for young people, but only as Mom and Dad would fit into it.

Uncle Charley also tends to be suspicious. He may be helping the kids with a loan, or fear that if things don't work out, their recriminations will come to roost on his doorstep.

"The one I'll never forget," says Mr. Whyte, "introduced himself as a builder. We had a nice property, the last of four completed in a new tract on which the construction people hadn't fixed their end price.

"Well, this Uncle Charley steered the couple away from that house, and by turning it down, they made the pair who did buy it a gift of $2,000 in appreciation.

"But here's the capper: We learned later that the old gentleman had never built anything except a couple of barns in Saskatchewan."

So much for Uncle C. Avoid him, agents suggest, unless he's a bona fide professional you've hired to appraise the joint. Otherwise, you're courting the condition recognized as buyers' remorse.

This results from a change of heart after the offer to purchase has been put in writing as British Columbia law requires, and passed on to the vendor.

Mr. Whyte—and please to remember he says it, not me—finds women especially susceptible to buyers' remorse. Often their reasons are plain psychic; they just don't like the feeling the house gives them. A more tangible reason, though, is that they've spotted a nest they like better.

"This can be expensive," Mr. Whyte points out, "since a deposit generally accompanies the offer, and it's the owner's choice as to whether he'll let a turncoat prospect back out a deal."

What, today, do people look for in houses?

Let a colonial come on the market, and the phone doesn't stop ringing. Buyers like the grace coupled with promise of security that colonial architecture offers.

Together, the type of family living where everyone's nose was in everybody's else's business, is now a dead duck. Victoria realtors are finding that while the old-style wife and children may be the most amiable of companions, they've decided they need a certain amount of privacy.

Hence, a demand for the multiple-bedroom house, and a brisk revival of interest in the large, stately old residences that charm the eye in Fairfield and Oak Bay south. Of these, some which were turned into duplexes in immediate postwar years are now being reconverted to single-family dwellings.

This leaning toward the old but soundly-built house also reflects the modern trend toward larger families. But if renovations are to be made, the buyers want them attended to before they take over. Do-it-yourself seems to be on the wane, too.

Another significant rift in the pattern has come with the high-rises, which are changing more than our skyline.

Once, a house seller's mainstay, the "grain cheque market" has declined in the last five years.

"From friends already out here," says Don Whyte, "and they all have friends, the prairie farmers learn there are a number of interesting things to do with their retirement years besides gardening. They want to go fishing, and play golf, and take winter trips to California or Hawaii. So a lot of them are moving into apartments."

That's all for now, except to note that a place with detached garage is a dog-and-pup, and to wish you good househunting.

building on Government (at left) and then to the neat, vacant space at bottom centre that once was a service station. Eventually, buildings to left and right of civic theatre (centre) also will disappear. Early next month, city hall staff will move to Bastion Square Courthouse so that construction crews can rebuild the interior and erect a city hall

Ferry Strike Could Come 'At Any Time'

Dissension Rampant
Union Man Charges

B.C. Ferries are "a hotbed of dissension," a union official said today.

Bob Cook, president of the marine engineer section of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers (CLC) told the Times a strike would probably result if the government refuses ferry workers' requests.

"I don't think anyone could stop it," he said. "It could come at any time."

Crews of two ferries staged a wildcat strike last month over their working hours. It ended when ferries manager Monty Aldous promised an early hearing.

Ferry workers, who are members of the B.C. Government Employees' Association, are seeking representation in the union of their own choice. Government action has been to hear grievances from "committees of people from each area of the company coming as delegates."

EXPEDIENCY
He said: "We believe the premier ordered this kind of thing out of political expediency. He's trying to keep the trouble quiet during the election."

He said the men don't want this. "They don't like being put on the spot as individuals, but the government won't allow them to send certified representatives."

Mr. Cook said he believed the company intended to form a type of "company union. But the men don't want it. Workers' grievances, he said, are "pages long."

COHO RETURNS WHEN SEIZURE HITS TOURIST

Black Ball Ferries' Mv Coho performed a fast about-face en route to Port Angeles this morning when a passenger suffered a seizure.

The ship was beyond the breakwater when it turned back with American visitor William Owen, 65, of Orinda, Calif., who was dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital.

He is survived by the widow Olga, who was traveling with him. The remains will be sent to Orinda by Thomson and Irving funeral home.

800 PLAY

Seattle Men Take Lead In Bridge

About 400 pairs, a total of nearly 800 players, took part in second day of the Pacific Northwest regional bridge tournament at the Empress Hotel on Tuesday.

Taking the lead in the men's pairs session, due to be completed this afternoon, are Emery Selmes and M. LeFevre of Seattle.

In second place are Brian May of Richmond and Joe Jacob of Vancouver.

A Victoria man, Eric Goodwin, is paired with world champion Oswald Jacoby, and they are in third place.

Also to be completed this afternoon are the women's pairs, led by two Seattle women at the end of Tuesday's play.

Leading are Betty Young and Phyllis Nobak. June-Budd Hicks and Mrs. M. L. Howell of Vancouver are in second place, and in third spot are Mary Hutchinson of Corvallis and Marge Berg of Salem.

TWO ROOMS

The tournament, easily the biggest ever held in Victoria, now takes up two rooms in the Empress—the Crystal Ballroom and Georgian Lounge.

It could spill over into another room if the players expected to be here by the end of the week show up.

Thursday's play includes the master pairs championship, which will be played off in two sessions, one on Thursday afternoon and the other in the evening.

Seven Escape Nanaimo Fire

NANAIMO—A family of six lost everything they possessed when an early morning fire destroyed their home today.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Botha, their four young children, and boarder Jim Allen escaped only with the clothes they could grab before the flames swept the frame home.

Mr. Botha, who works at Franklin River, was home to see a doctor on the advice of his company.

He was sitting up reading the paper when he went to the kitchen to get the other section and noticed the back porch in flames. Mrs. Botha said it is unlikely any of the family would have survived if her husband had not been awake.

Murder Victim 'Shaken Up' For Threatening to Squeal

Earlier Fracas Revealed To Reporter by Tipster

A report that George Down was given a "shaking up" two weeks before he was murdered is being investigated by city detectives.

The report came in an anonymous phone call to a Times reporter.

The caller was a young man, judging from his voice. There was no way of telling whether the call was a hoax or a serious report.

The information was passed along by the Times to police investigating the 19-day-old murder.

It suggests that Down might have encountered his murderer or murderers at least once before his skull was smashed in the Hudson's Bay Co. parkade in the early hours of Aug. 30.

The caller, who refused to identify himself, said he "understood Down was shaken up by some other kids because he had threatened to squeal on them for something."

This happened about two weeks before the murder, the caller said.

"The way I heard it, there could have been three of them," said the caller, and hung up.

Three youths were seen with Down, a 17-year-old delivery boy, in Coffee Mac's half an hour before he was killed.

They have not come forward in response to a police plea for public help.

And three youths tried to break into Christ Church Cathedral on Monday night, possibly in an attempt to recover what police suspect was the weapon used to kill Down.

A foot-long steel bar was found in a collection box there Monday night when the box was being cleaned out.

A youth was asked to leave the church when found there after dark by a church official, who then locked the doors.

When a woman knocked at the door, and was admitted, some time later, the same youth accompanied by two other teenagers was seen standing behind the woman.

She reported that the three had followed her to several other doors of the church which were also locked.

The steel bar is about an inch wide, and three-eighths of an inch thick.

Minute deposits of something resembling dried blood, and specimens looking like hair, were found clinging to the bar under cellulose tape wrapped around one end.

It is being examined in the RCMP crime laboratory in Vancouver.

Since vestibule doors of Christ Church Cathedral are locked overnight, the weapon must have been in the murderer's possession at least overnight.

The box is cleaned out every 10 or 15 days.

Down was struck down from behind by two powerful blows that sent him reeling and crushed the back of his head.

18-Year-Olds To Get Vote If NDP Wins

The man who is billed by the New Democratic Party as the next attorney-general of B.C. said today he would lower the voting age to 18 from the present 19.

Alex Macdonald, seeking reelection Sept. 30 as MLA for Vancouver East, told a press conference in Vancouver this is one of a number of legislative and electoral reforms in the NDP program.

Party leader Robert Strachan has already stated Mr. Macdonald will be the attorney-general in his cabinet.

Mr. Macdonald's father, Malcolm, was provincial attorney-general in a Liberal government prior to 1920.

BILL OF RIGHTS

Mr. Macdonald junior said the NDP will introduce a bill of rights, appoint public defenders and allow anyone to sue the government.

It will also bring a Hansard reporting system to the legislature, investigating television sessions, re-distribute the seats and limit election campaign spending.

Mr. Macdonald said the NDP will in addition appoint an "ombudsman" who would hear citizens' complaints about government and investigate their validity.

"He will have the right to make a report to the legislature which will be made public. If the provincial government or one of its agencies or one of its crown corporations refuses to do anything to rectify a complaint which he feels is justified," Mr. Macdonald said.

KEEP PACE

Another NDP proposal is to establish a law reform committee—"to keep the law up to date."

It would be composed of judges, lawyers and professors and would report to the legislature.

Mr. Macdonald said that the NDP would institute an oral question period in the legislature to replace the existing written question and answer system.

"The people have a right to be informed," he said.

Redistribution would be conducted on the recommendations of an independent commission, Mr. Macdonald said, and if necessary it would enlarge the number of seats in the House.

BY POPULATION

He made it clear, however, the NDP favors representation by population rather than by area.

ELECTION NOTEBOOK

By FRANK RUTTER

Not a Burp in a Ballot Box

Straw polls are illegal during provincial campaigns but the Elections Act says nothing about hamburgers.

Enterprising Vancouver drive-in restaurateur John Dyes is running what he calls "three convenient polling stations" where patrons can express their opinions by buying Bennett Burgers, Strachan Burgers, Fulton Burgers or Perrault Burgers.

They're all the same price—49 cents.

The Bennett Burger contains meat, lettuce and cheese. "Give us credit for this one, my friends," says the menu.

The Strachan Burger has meat, cheese and onions.

"Recommended by your doctor."

The Fulton version has meat and cheese only.

Mr. Dyes says Strachan Burgers held an early lead, but Bennett Burgers have recently taken over.

Mr. Dyes was told by electoral officials to cut it out, but he says he's testing hamburger popularity, not politicians.

Anyway, he added, if he does get fined the legal penalty of $250 he'll have made many times more than this one sales

Well, the Profumo affair finally made it to the B.C. election campaign Tuesday. Conservative leader Davie Fulton uttered the infamous name in a speech to the Kiwanis Club.

He said he had been casting about for a non-political topic on which to address them.

"I thought that Profumo was about as non-political as you could get—but it would have been better if he had been a Social Creditor," Mr. Fulton said ruefully.

Premier Bennett promises Vancouver a new bridge but no fences.

He told North Shore residents Tuesday there would be a new Burrard Inlet bridge "in the near future" if he was re-elected but told reporters "don't fence me in" when pressed for details.

No, Victorians, you don't vote for Griffin versus Chant or Skillings versus Forbes on Sept. 30. It's not an individual contest in the three-seat riding. Local campaign headquarters have received a number of inquiries from residents asking

"Who is paired off with who?" There are three candidates for each party and you have three votes. You can vote all three for one party or split them up.

North Vancouver Liberal Gordon Gibson has challenged Premier Bennett to a TV debate on finance.

He wired him Tuesday after the premier had issued a challenge to Alberta university professor Dr. E. J. Hanson, whose series of articles on B.C. finance are running in a Vancouver newspaper.

Local meetings tonight: Victoria Liberals, 8 p.m., Optimist Hall, Superior St.; Victoria Socials, 8, Centennial United Church; Saanich Liberals, Brentwood Women's Community Hall, 8; Esquimalt NDP, Colwood Community Hall; Esquimalt Socials, Jordan-River Community Hall.

Signs Hopeful In Beer Dispute

Last-minute talks may avert the strike which threatens to close four Vancouver breweries before the weekend.

Victoria union representative (local 280), George Parks, flew to Vancouver this morning.

Brewery managements today called for union-management talks, which began at 1:30 p.m.

Brewery workers are seeking a 26-cent hourly wage boost over a two-year period on the current basic $3.32 per hour.

It failed to appear when called, even though it hadn't far to go.

City court is held in Saanich municipality's police and fire building.

Harry Jones of Port Renfrew pleaded not guilty in Sooke RCMP court Tuesday to possessing a stolen shotgun.

He was remanded in custody to Sept. 26 for trial.

An impaired driver who couldn't raise the $250 fine chose 21 days in jail instead. Victor Margison, 1036 Pen-dergast, was convicted on the charge in city police court Tuesday.

Court was told a constable had to vault over the hood of Margison's car to avoid being hit by it. Cons. James Smith was escorting two young girls across the street at Johnson and Broad when the accused man's car turned the corner.

He put up his hand to stop it, but the car kept coming, so the constable put his hand on the hood and vaulted over the fender, landing on his feet.

Will Live in Toronto

After a honeymoon trip to San Francisco and Monterey, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Watt will motor to Toronto where they will make their new home.

They were married in Knox Presbyterian Church on Saturday evening. Rev. A. A. Rat-tray heard the marriage vows and organist was R. Cox.

The bride is the former Donna Joy Peck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman L. Peck, 238 Stormont Road. Groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Watt of Vancouver.

FLORAL DECOR

White gladioli decorated the church for the occasion. Pews were marked with white heather.

Entering the church on her father's arm, the bride was lovely in a dainty gown of white organza that was fashioned with full-length bouffant skirt, fitted bodice, rounded neckline and lily point sleeves. The three-tier bouffant veil of illusion net misted from a cluster of white roses. White heather, brought from Scotland by the groom's uncle, William Watt, Vancouver, highlighted the bouquet of white

Talisman roses, stephanotis and ivy.

Maid of honor, Miss Bonnie Williams, was dressed in turquoise brocade while bridesmaids, the Misses Muriel Watt, the groom's sister, and Sandra Briddick, cousin of the bride, both from Vancouver, had toning gowns of taffeta with nylon chiffon overskirts.

The eight-year-old sister of the bride, Noni, wore a frock of turquoise chiffon, edged in white lace.

TURQUOISE AND WHITE

All wore toning whimsies of organza roses and veiling and carried white carnations tipped in turquoise.

Howie Bateman, Vancouver, was best man and ushering guests were Jimmy Peck, the bride's brother and Ian Stewart.

Harry Downard proposed the toast to the bride's happiness at a reception held in Holyrood House. Golden chrysanthemums and yellow candles decorated the tables. Johanna Hill roses flanked the three-tier wedding cake on the head table.

For her going-away outfit the bride chose a turquoise worsted wool suit, black patent accessories and black velvet hat with white organza brim. Corsage was of white roses.

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United Nations powerful steering committee recommended today that the question of treatment of Buddhists in South Viet Nam be placed before the current session of the General Assembly.

The 21-nation committee took the action after hearing Ceylonese and Indonesian delegates declare that the situation in South Viet Nam has become a matter of international concern.

Before it acted the committee got bogged down in a procedural argument over whether it should hear the delegate from South Viet Nam, which has only observer status.

End of UN
'Blessing'

SOMERSET STRAND (AP)—South African Foreign Minister Eric Louw said today dissolution of the United Nations "would be a blessing for South Africa and certain other countries." He did not specify which others.

Louw told the ruling National party's Cape congress, however, it was not impossible for the United Nations to cease to exist. He said any decision on South Africa's membership in the United Nations would depend on the circumstances applying at the time.

There has been speculation in South Africa that if the UN General Assembly acted strongly against South Africa's apartheid (racial segregation) policies the government might decide to quit rather than face the possibility of expulsion.

Louw said it would be a blow to the United States if the United Nations ceased to exist because "she used this body as an instrument in her foreign policy."

S.A. Issue
Raised Again

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—A special United Nations committee asked the General Assembly and the Security Council today to consider expelling South Africa at once from the world organization for its policy of rigid racial segregation.

It also called on UN members to carry out penalties against South Africa suggested by the assembly last year. These include an arms embargo, a petroleum embargo and an end to foreign investment in South Africa.

The 11-nation special committee of Asian, African and Latin American nations was established last year to review South Africa's racial policies.

Meanwhile Prime Minister Pearson of Canada worked on the final drafts of the speech he will deliver to the General Assembly Thursday.

Informants said Pearson is not expected to make any dramatic statement, but that he will make an appeal for a further slackening of East-West tensions in light of the nuclear test ban.

Columbia
Power
'First'

VANCOUVER (CP)—E. Davie Fulton said today power could be available to British Columbia immediately after ratification of the international Columbia River treaty with the United States.

The Progressive Conservative leader said when Premier Bennett says that Peace power would be available before Columbia power he is misleading the people.

At a breakfast meeting and a press conference he said the United States has already stated it would provide Canada with an equivalent of one-third of its downstream entitlement under the treaty immediately after ratification.

This would mean that between 300,000 and 400,000 kilowatts would be available at Blaine, Wash., 30 miles south of Vancouver, immediately after ratification.

The treaty has been ratified by the U.S. but not by Canada.

Mr. Fulton was commenting on his announcement at Prince George that a Progressive Conservative government would stop work on the Peace River and make an immediate start on the Columbia.

He said Premier Bennett has said that the Peace must be built because it could produce power by 1968 and Columbia power would not be available by then.

But by not selling B.C.'s downstream benefits, as planned by Mr. Bennett, B.C. could have immediate power from the Columbia, Mr. Fulton said.

China Seat
Debate Set

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The United Nations steering committee recommended Wednesday that the assembly consider UN membership for Communist China.

The vote on the China question was 12 to 1 with eight abstentions. Nationalist China cast the lone negative vote.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (Reuters)—Students at Copenhagen University hurled oranges across their canteen Tuesday night in protest against being served South African fruit. The students hurled bottles of South African goods because of segregation policies.

DIONNE QUINTS TELL STORY:

'Drenched in Sense of Sin Since Hour of Our Birth'

NEW YORK (CP)—The Dionne quintuplets say they moved into "the saddest home we ever knew" when they were reunited with their parents and brothers and sisters after seven years in the shelter of a nursery.

"If love begets love, guilt begets guilt," the four surviving quintuplets—Annette, Yvonne, Marie and Cecile—say in their life story, as told to James Bough in the current issue of McCall's magazine.

"The air of the big house was thick with it. Mom and dad behaved toward each other as though they had been partners in some unspoken crime in bringing us into the world. We were drenched with a sense of having sinned from the hour of our birth."

The "big house" was a 10-bedroom home Oliva Dionne built at Callander, Ont., to house his family of 11 after the six brothers and sisters...

The children, made wards of the Ontario government soon after their birth in 1934 to prevent them from being exploited, spent their first seven years in a government-built and government-supervised nursery on the family farm at Callander. They were cared for by a corps of nurses, teachers and guards supervised by Dr. Allan Dafeo, the country doctor who had delivered them.

MEMORIES UNPLEASANT They describe these early years as happy and carefree, but recall few pleasant memories of their life after they returned to the family.

"Dad wanted us and the quintuplet funds in his own exclusive custody," the sisters said. "In the beginning he needed money for the sake of the other children. But afterward, his fortunes improved... it made no difference. By then, it was a matter of self-esteem that he should win. We were such a prize."

"We were transferred into the big house like a conquered army," they recall, "one group of five, huddling together as if for protection against the other six brothers and sisters."

"Other members of the family went out of their way to say wounding things about us, how they had all been happier before we came into their lives..."

"The thought was drummed into us that the discord in which the family lived much of the time was our doing."

"All the children worked in theory, but in practice most of the chores seemed to fall on us."

"We had to scrub floors and clean bathrooms, every item of plumbing in them. We milked the cows and fed the chickens, enjoying the hours outdoors for the most part, because it was a joy to escape from close supervision."

"In the spring, we helped shear the three or four sheep kept in a field behind the house."

The girls say the secret of the illness of their sister Emilie, who died after an attack of epilepsy in 1954, was carefully guarded because "the family considered her illness a shameful thing."

The quint's recollection of an unhappy home life recalls controversy that flared in 1955 when none of the girls, then living in Montreal, went home for Christmas.

The father said then that his daughters were drifting away from the family, so much so that they had been treating their brothers and sisters "almost with contempt." He and Mrs. Dionne blamed unnamed outside intruders for the separation.

Whatever trouble there was seemed to have been smoothed over when three of the girls went home for New Year's.

Papa Dionne
'Upset' by Story

TORONTO (UPI)—Oliva Dionne, father of the Dionne quintuplets, was reported "very upset" today over a story written by his daughters charging their childhood was unhappy because of their parents.

"The government has no right to do otherwise on such an important matter as this. We are prepared to stop the agreement going through whatever that may mean."

His "whatever that may mean" comment was taken to mean the NDP is prepared even to defeat the government and force another federal election on the issue.

No cabinet, he said, was entitled to agree to such a treaty without referring it to the people's elected representatives for approval.

Mr. Douglas, who returned home late Tuesday night, said his five weeks of travel in

'Kill English'
Rioters Chant

(Times News Services)

JAKARTA—Indonesia troops were called out in an apparent bid to restore order late today after violent anti-British rioting in which Britain's embassy was wrecked and set ablaze.

United States ambassador Howard P. Jones told reporters he had learned the army's Jakarta garrison had been told to take over control of the capital and restore order as soon as possible.

The garrison's troops began patrolling streets through which thousands of demonstrators rampaged screaming "kill the English."

The violence saw stones hurled at the British ambassador and men and women members of his staff.

The frenzied mobs smashed British homes and outside the blazing three-story glass and concrete embassy building they piled up nine embassy cars and set them on fire, together with furniture dragged from the building.

Late in the day about 50 Britons rescued from the rioters were under close guard at police headquarters. Two men and one young woman suffered minor injuries, but no Briton or white foreigner was reported seriously hurt.

Earlier, as the embassy burned, the crowd pressed close to a group of 22 British men and women huddled near the wall and began hurling stones, bottles and bricks. A dozen police armed with fixed bayonets and sub-machine-guns tried to hold them back.

AMBASSADOR HIT

Two stones hit British Ambassador Andrew Gilchrist as he stood with folded arms.

The British Cricket Club, set up 119 years ago, was destroyed and the pitch dug up.

A group of British children, including two of Ambassador Gilchrist's, arrived by air in Singapore tonight on their way to London.

More than a score of rioters were injured, mostly through their own actions. A hard core of several hundred, which moved on the embassy in trucks quickly swelled to more than 10,000. Thousands of others flocked to the fringes to watch.

The Union Jack was ripped from its staff, torn and burned.

The fire that ravaged the embassy building broke out by a third-floor balcony window. Within a half-hour the flames had swept that floor.

Squads of the rioters methodically sacked the building. They hurled out papers and furniture and burned them on the embassy lawn.

Reports reaching here said a labor union had seized control of the British Shell Oil Company's office and installations at Pladju, southern Sumatra.

In Kuala Lumpur, capital of Malaysia, the government announced it was putting the country "in a state of preparedness" because of Indonesian and Philippine hostility.

Indonesian Defence Minister Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution, called on his country to enhance its physical alertness to press Indonesia's policy of confrontation against Malaysia.

President Sukarno of Indonesia has denounced the new nation as a British plot to prolong colonialism and encircle Indonesia.

Hours after the new nation was proclaimed, Indonesian mobs stormed the British and Malaysian embassies in Jakarta Monday.

As a result, Malaysia severed diplomatic relations with Indonesia Tuesday. It took similar action against the Philippines which had claimed part of North Borneo and withheld recognition of the infant nation.

About 1,000 Malaysians demonstrators tore up the Indonesian embassy in Kuala Lumpur Tuesday in revenge for Monday's violence here.

Threats Made
In London

LONDON (Reuters)—Bomb threats have been made to the Indonesian embassy in London, an embassy spokesman said today.

A police guard was put on duty at the embassy during the day.

Douglas Seeking N-Arms Debates

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas has arrived home from a tour of Europe convinced Canada's acquisition of nuclear weapons will add nothing to Western defences—and he threatens to bring down the minority Liberal government on the issue.

He will insist on examination by parliament of the nuclear agreement signed by the government with the United States, he said in a press conference today.

"The government has no right to do otherwise on such an important matter as this. We are prepared to stop the agreement going through whatever that may mean."

His "whatever that may mean" comment was taken to mean the NDP is prepared even to defeat the government and force another federal election on the issue.

No cabinet, he said, was entitled to agree to such a treaty without referring it to the people's elected representatives for approval.

Mr. Douglas, who returned home late Tuesday night, said his five weeks of travel in West Germany, the Scandinavian countries and Holland strengthened his view that Canada would be adding nothing to western security by acquiring nuclear weapons.

Such action, in fact, was making it more difficult to stop the spread of nuclear weapons to other nations, he declared.

Mr. Douglas disagreed with suggestions that the issue already had been voted on in parliament on the non-confidence motion which criticized the government for moving to get nuclear warheads.

That was a vote on a principle, Mr. Douglas maintained, but this time it would be on an actual treaty committing the government to a specific course of action which had not been debated.

On other issues, however, Mr. Douglas said his party was prepared to give the government "reasonable" support after parliament reconvened Sept. 30.

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain has warned Indonesia to stop such "uncivilized behavior" as the burning of the British Embassy in Jakarta, a Foreign Office spokesman said today.

Foreign Secretary Lord Home today called Indonesian ambassador Burhanudin Mohamed Diah to the Foreign Office to issue the warning.

Home told him to ask Indonesia to take measures "immediately" to protect the British ambassador and British lives and property in Indonesia, the spokesman said.

Home told Diah the news from Jakarta that the British embassy had been attacked for the second time and set on fire was viewed with "strong displeasure" by the British government, the spokesman added.

JFK to Meet
Top Negroes
On Crisis

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—President Kennedy today arranged a meeting in Washington Thursday with seven Negro leaders to discuss the tense racial situation in Birmingham following the bombing of a church which killed four girls.

The conference was requested by Negro leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. of Atlanta.

Hundreds of saddened Negroes gathered this afternoon for the funeral of three of the girls.

King's office in Atlanta said those who would attend the White House meeting would include, in addition to King, the Revs. Fred Shuttlesworth, Ralph D. Abernathy and J. L. Ware; A. G. Gaston, Birmingham Negro businessman; Dr. Lucius Pitts, president of Alabama State College and Bishop H. I. Murchison of Birmingham.

Five Negroes returned quietly to classes today in three newly-integrated schools in the city.

Sobering Finale Written To Credit Card Binge

A young man who stole a credit card and travelled across the continent on it was brought to book for the offence in Sooke RCMP court Tuesday.

Bruce Osmo Talvain, about 23, formerly of Sooke, was sentenced to one year in Oakalla on charges of breaking and entering, and theft.

He pleaded guilty.

Talvain stole $3 and a credit card from Cain Bros. Garage in Sooke on July 2 of last year.

He broke in by smashing the glass in a small window and unlatching the door.

Talvain then left for his United States, eventually arriving in Washington, D.C., having run up a bill of about $1,200 on the credit card.

He was arrested there, held for nine months, and then deported to Ontario.

RCMP arrested him there and shipped him back to Sooke to face the breaking and entering charge.

FEARED SUNK AT SEA

Winged Spacecraft Lost Overnight Entries

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The first American space payload with wings rocketed today, but after several hours recovery vessels failed to find it and officials feared it may have sunk in the sea.

The shot was the first in Project Asat, which is testing techniques for developing manned spacecraft with wings.

It rode a Thor rocket more than 25 miles high and then streaked back through the atmosphere to a splashdown in the Atlantic Ocean about 1,000 miles south-east of Cape Canaveral. Tracking devices followed the vehicle throughout the 20-minute, 9,000-mile-an-hour flight.

The air force reported the Asat craft hit in the planned landing zone and ships and planes began to search the area.

Several hours after launching, the payload had not been sighted. Recovery was important so that officials could determine how well the vehicle survived the jarring journey.

The launching was the first of six scheduled in the air force's Project Asat—another aerodynamic, elastic structural systems environmental tests.

The $34,000,000 program will provide data for developing manned spacecraft which could return through the atmosphere from orbit, manoeuvre over thousands of square miles to select an appropriate landing spot then touch down on a jet field like an airplane.

Perrault Claim Draws Denials

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—There is no basis for suggestions that Canada is attempting to negotiate out of the proposed "High Arrow" dam part of the Canada-U.S. Columbia River treaty, informed sources said here today.

"That is a figment of someone's imagination," the sources declared in comment on the claim by B.C. Liberal Leader Ray Perrault. He had stated that Ottawa Liberals wanted to postpone the High Arrow dam and replace it with a Low Arrow dam near Murphy Creek.

Mr. Perrault has made this claim a major part of his campaign in the Sept. 30 B.C. election race. He has made the statement at both Nakusp and Nelson, in interior B.C.

The High Arrow dam was an integral part of the treaty, spokesmen said, and could not be left out of the over-all development without major amendment to the treaty. In current negotiations Canada is seeking "modifications and clarifications" to the treaty, but with no major changes.

Denial of Mr. Perrault's campaign declaration is in keeping with a July statement of Prime Minister Pearson that the physical plan of Columbia development contemplated by the treaty is to be carried out.

Man Upbraided For Shooting Swimming Deer

CHEMAINUS—William E. Brenton of Duncan pleaded guilty in magistrate's court Tuesday to shooting a swimming deer from a boat near Saltair beach on Sept. 15. He was fined $25.

Magistrate R. H. Purdy told the accused: "I don't think you are a fit and proper person to have a licence. I would cancel it but I cannot find anything in the Game Act which gives me the power."

DIDN'T KNOW

"I didn't think I was breaking the law at the time. I think I needed the meat pretty bad," the accused said.

The magistrate said only the fact the accused was a $96-a-month social assistance recipient saved him from the maximum fine of $100.

$2 Million Job Under Way At CPR Terminal

NANAIMO—A $2,000,000 construction project at the CPR terminal started here this week.

The project being carried out by the Fraser River Pile Driving Co., general contractors, includes construction of a ramp and floating slip midway along the ferry wharf. These improvements will provide speedier loading.

A new building to contain ticket office, waiting room, baggage space and new roadways, will also be built.
